Young sluthes find diamond (and gold) in the rough

Lost and Found

WILMINGTON - David Caira says it's probably been at least three years that he's been hearing the story of Arnie Aprile's missing gold and diamond ring. Arnie and his wife Betty are in the same bowling league as David's parents, Kevin and Cheryl Caira.

The story goes that not long after moving to Wilmington in 1967, Arnie and his neighbors were in the neighbor's backyard playing football. As he threw a pass, the ring flew off Arnie's finger; and although they searched for it, they were unable to find the ring.

The ring was a family heirloom - it started as a gold ring with an engraved "A", and had been given to Arnie's mother by his godmother at his birth. When Arnie turned 30, his mother gave him the ring. "But not two years later," Betty said, "He lost it." Betty particularly treasured it because she had had three diamonds (originally in her engagement ring) set into the ring to represent their three sons.

For years, Betty had been asking David to come over with his metal detector to find the ring. With time on his hands over April vacation this year, David and his sister Amy decided now was the

A multi-part series: Addressing the issues surrounding a new high school

High School facilities may need more than a facelift

Structure pre-dates the computer era

WILMINGTON - Thursday night the Wilmington High School Building Committee will host its second public forum on the high school feasibility study, and in particular, to release designs the committee has chosen to move forward.

Some residents have raised concerns about costs associated with building a new high school and often cite the 'structurally sound' nature of the high school as a reason not to pursue a new building.

The Crier decided to take a look and accompanied Superintendent Joanne Benton on tour Tuesday morning. While the building is structurally sound, that does not mean that it is adequate to the needs of the students, teachers, staff, and community that use the space. Every municipal building should, at the least, be structurally sound, but every building should also serve the purpose for which it was built. Wilmington High School, today, is more than a little rough around the edges.

Serving a population of 974 students every day, plus further heavy use for after-school and community sports and activities, including Town Meeting, the High School takes a beating. Though it is very well maintained and cared for by administration, staff, and the students, the school appears worn out.

Originally built in 1950, over the years residents have generously supported various renovations and additions to the school. In 1956 the Adams Street wing was added. Thirty years later, in 1986, the cafeteria, gym, and library were added to the building. In 1990 and 2002 some additional renovations were undertaken, to keep the building adequate for its use.

"For the long term, a new building is the most sensible choice. It would give the town a well-designed school with the lowest maintenance costs. Further, it would be quickest to build and avoid disruption of classes during construction," said Benton. "Although the present high school may be structurally sound, it does not provide the space for the educational program we are trying to provide our students."

Major grant from Whole Foods establishes salad bar

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - A $5,000 grant from Whole Foods to the Wilmington Public Schools food service program in February has brought fresh food options to a new height with the introduction of a salad bar for one elementary school.

Offering seven to fourteen different fruits and vegetables every day, in every school, is just par for the course in Wilmington, and is ahead of the curve for most lunch programs. The new salad bar at the Woburn Street School, which houses grades 1 to 3, gives young children even more healthy choices. And the best part; the kids really like it.

WILMINGTON - If a newcomer wanted to know anything about Wilmington, all he would need to see was Monday's Board of Selectmen meeting. The spirit of volunteerism that pervades Wilmington was evident in full force with discussions about the Fourth of July festivities planned for the year, the iPods for Wounded Veterans program, and the third annual relay for life.

Paul Cardello, Chairman, and Ed Williams, Secretary/Treasurer for the non-profit iPods for Wounded Veterans program came before selectmen again to talk about their recent visit to Walter Reed Army Medical Center to deliver well over 200 iPods, 2 iPads, magazines, and a major morale boost to veterans recovering from war wounds.

"It's just great to be a resident of Wilmington, Massachusetts," said Cardello. "I just can't believe the generosity of this town."

Cardello thanked Selectman Mike McCoy for a generous $250.00 donation and Williams praised Textron for continued generous support even through a management change within those organizations.

"This all started with Lou and I having a conversation eight or nine months ago," remembered Williams, impressed with the growth a support for the group in town

The Brown family of the Harnden Tavern

By LARZ F. NEILSON

The Harnden Tavern in North Wilmington, now the town museum, is the setting for some great stories. Built about 1770, it was purchased by Joshua Harnden, who later served in the Revolutionary War and eventually became a colonel in the militia after the war.

Rarely do kids get these varied options at home daily with tossed greens, carrots, cucumbers, tomatoes, croutons, Syrian bread, shredded mozzarella, diced turkey breast, tuna fish, peaches, cran-raisins, and more.

"We tend to stick with what we know the kids really like and we change it up," said Mary Palen, MBA and Food Service Director for Wilmington Public Schools.

Students who do not choose the salad bar still have access to fresh fruits and veggies. A menu might have whole-wheat rotini with meatballs and sauce served with green beans or peas. But kids can also select small containers of baby carrots, celery, strawberries or blueberries with whipped topping, oranges, red and green apples, bananas, watermelon, and cucumber.

And yes, in Wilmington, kids like the whole-wheat pasta. Palen credits her "excellent staff," proper cooking, and high quality products as making a nutritious lunch appetizing too.

The grant from Whole Foods actually provided all the necessary equipment including containers, utensils, and training materials, directly to the district rather than offering a reimbursement. The materials together are valued at $5,000. With the grant awarded in February, the salad bar was completely up and running by March 15.

I'm just thrilled and appreciative of the Whole Foods grant. It's a wonderful opportunity for our students to get healthy food and healthy habits at lunch," said Superintendent of Schools Joanne Benton, who observed the salad bar when it went into effect.

The response from students and staff alike has been positive. Prior to April vacation students consumed over 150 servings. Participation in the lunch program is high, with 65 to 70 percent buying lunch daily.

"Staff are enjoying the fact that the kids are enjoying it," said Palen. "I always tell them, 'we'll try it and then tweak it, then we'll try it again and tweak it again.'"

Getting the workflow right took a few weeks to iron out.

"In the real world of school lunch, that's unheard of," said Palen. Participation fluctuates naturally depending what's on the menu. Most popular option is Ultimate Nachos, which is a handful of corn tortilla chips with seasoned taco meat (kidney beans snuck in for an extra wallop of protein) served with cheese sauce, lettuce, tomatoes, salsa, brown rice, and fruit. Chicken nuggets are a close second.

Palen makes it her mission to offer healthy, wholesome food to students at all grades that actually tastes good. She is quite picky about the vendors she chooses for the district, and she does it all at prices that make other districts gasp.

Parents pay $1.75 for hot lunch in the elementary, $2 at the middle school and $2 at the high school. It's a bargain that can't be beat.

For most meals, the district receives a 27-cent reimbursement from the Federal School Lunch program; higher for reduced price lunches, and up to $2.75 for a free lunch. However, the federal government is considering requiring all districts to raise the base price to $2.50 for every meal. In Wilmington, says Palen, the revenues come from the high participation rate for students, not the federal reimbursement. Only eight percent of students qualify for free and reduced lunches.

"I'm an aide to students getting a better education," comments Palen. "In all honesty, when it comes to lunch, it makes or breaks a kid's day. If kids come down and they don't like it, it just breaks their day."

tickets," said Woburn Police Det. Timothy Donovan. "They're expected to go pretty fast."

A 34-year veteran of the Woburn police force, officer Maguire was killed in the line of duty responding to an armed robbery on Dec. 26. The theme of the event is "In Valor There is Hope."

The event will consist of raffle prizes, a silent auction, food, music and other entertainment.

The list of items that have been donated to raise proceeds for the scholarship fund is impressive. One of the biggest prizes is a cruise from Norwegian Cruise Lines, while there will also be a Polk Audio home theater given away.

There are also two sets of Red Sox tickets to be given away - including a pair of second row ducats near the third base dugout.

The sports memorabilia is impressive. There are two signed photos of Bobby Orr's famous overtime goal in the 1970 Stanley Cup finals, a time. The $100 reward that Betty offered just might have been an incentive.

There are also gift certificates provided by local merchants and restaurants, including the Great Mandarin, Bertucci's and ScrubaDub. More prizes are expected to be donated in the coming weeks.

Anyone interested in purchasing tickets, which are $20, or to make a tax exempt donation, may contact Det. Donovan at 781-932-4510, ext. 852, or officers Mario Pascuccio, Denis McGrath, James Dugan or Edward Jolly.

With some direction from the Apriles and the neighbor, none of whom could remember in which part of the yard the ring was lost, Amy and David got to work. They passed over multiple spots that the detector indicated, but there were three times they dug through the dirt and turned up nothing more than scrap metal. At the fourth spot they dug, they had to dig through tree roots and almost gave up. But, as Amy said, "There was that 'what if' feeling," so they kept digging. And there it was - Arnie's gold and diamond ring. According to Amy, she and her brother were both pretty speechless. "We weren't really expecting to find it."

They rinsed off the ring and brought it in. Arnie and Betty were shocked, with Arnie at a loss for words, and Betty jumping with excitement. Betty says that even though she never gave up on finding the ring, she was still amazed that the kids found it. "My husband's mother is looking down on us," she said.

Betty immediately made good on her reward, which David and Amy split. David says his reward is going into a car fund, and Amy will put hers toward college.

After having the ring cleaned and polished, it was restored to its natural beauty. Arnie laughed when he tried it on. It no longer fit his ring finger, so Betty decided it should be hers to wear. But Arnie would have no part of that; the he now sports the ring on his pinky finger.

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

1816. The tavern was bought by a speculator named Parker. Two years later, he sold it to Dr. Silas Brown. One of the more colorful persons to live in the tavern was Silas Brown, Jr., born in October 1818, two months after the family moved into the tavern.

For more than half of its existence, the old tavern was owned by the Brown family. Many stories about the tavern and the Brown family are found in "Harnden Tavern Tales," by the late Alice Dillaway, a Brown descendant.

Silas Jr. began a music education with Joseph Harnden, who while keeper of the tavern, had played the fiddle at the tavern. Joseph was probably the son of Joseph Harnden, who died as a Minuteman in the lines in Cambridge, on Christmas Eve, 1775. This would make Joseph, the fiddler & tavern keeper, the nephew of Col. Joshua Harnden.

Silas Jr.'s parents thought he would not be well-suited for farming, so they did their best to provide a musical education. Silas proved to be a very talented musician, playing the piano, organ, fife and fiddle. A niece said of him that his playing compared favorably with that of the most famous virtuosos of her day. In the course of his studies, he became good friends with George Root, who became a prominent musician and composer in the mid-1800's. There was a lasting friendship.

Silas Jr. was chosen head of the Wilmington group at the dedication of the Bunker Hill Monument on June 17, 1843. In 1841, he was issued a teaching certificate from the Wilmington School Committee, but there is no record of his ever having taught.

Music, though, provided no income for Silas Brown, Jr. He spent much of his life working on his father's farm and running the Nod Mill. The doctor would arise early, work all day at farming tasks, and then see patients in the evening. Another son, Jonathan, became Dr. Brown's assistant, eventually becoming the first superintendent of the Tewksbury Alms House, (later Tewksbury Hospital) and then an army surgeon in the Civil War.

The Brown family, though members of the Congregational Church, became followers of the Swedenborgian Church. Emanuel Swedenborg (1688-1772) was a Swedish scientist who turned to religious writing. He was also strongly against slavery. The movement became widespread in the middle 1800's. It was through Hiram Colburn of Woburn that the Browns were introduced to Swedenborg's beliefs.

In a small town, this almost amounted to heresy. One North Wilmington resident forbade his daughter to return to her employment at Dr. Brown's after she told him that she had read some lines from one of Swedenborg's writings, supposedly when the book fell open. The line she quoted read, "The Lord never sends anyone to Hell."

In the years leading up to the Civil War, the anti-slavery movement was especially strong in the Boston area. Dr. Brown was asked if the tavern could be used as a stopping point for escaping slaves on the so-called Underground Railroad. No records were ever kept, for it was illegal. But the Tales of the Harnden Tavern has stories that Silas Jr. told of two particular slaves who came to the tavern and then disappeared.

Silas Jr. told of one ex-slave who he helped escape at night, leaving no tracks in the snow. The man climbed to the roof through a skylight, slid down to the road, and followed some other footprints.

Ownership of the tavern was split between Silas Jr. and his brother Francis. Following the death of Dr. Brown in 1864, Francis' ownership was signed over to their sister Abigail. Without the medical practice to support them, the pair found themselves with a meager income. Furthermore, they did not get along with each other.

Each of them stuck to their own portion of the tavern. Summer boarders provided a good deal of their income, and Silas provided musical entertainment for his guests.

In the 1830's, to railroads were built in Wilmington, and in the 1840's, another line was built, crossing the Brown's property, enabling the Browns to send their produce to market. In spite of superior produce, they sometimes were exploited by crooked dealers.

Farming was not Silas' strong suit. A letter written to his brother John in Philadelphia in 1864 gives an idea of his situation.

"We have planted the piece back of the barn with potatoes and garden seeds. The pasture by the Gray house, we have planted with corn, beans and potatoes, a small piece of it on the north side, with winter wheat. The wheat looks well in spots. A small piece of it next to the road was killed with the ice. The crows pulled up some of the corn. The cranberry vines were very badly bitten, one frost will often destroy the cranberry crop for two years in succession. The buckshorn crows-foot and waterbushes were injured by the frost, but the mosquitoes were preserved. There bids fair to be a great crop of taxes and subscriptions to get soldiers for our Holy War, pay the parson, build a new meeting house."

The old church had burned down in 1864.

Ironically, in spite of his religious differences, and in spite of being quite deaf, Silas Jr. was the organist at the Congregational Church. Occasionally, he would lose count while playing, and he would begin a fifth verse of a four-verse hymn. The minister, unable to get his attention verbally, would go to the organ and tap Brown on the shoulder. Brown would give an abrupt start and the music would stop.

The organ at that time was located near the front of the sanctuary. It was run from an air pump, which would be powered by a young man on a stair-climber. If he began to slack off, the organ would lose power and Brown would hiss, "More air, dammit!"

The Brown family was also the last owner of the Nod Mill, at Martin's Brook, near Shea's, east of the tavern. Dr. Brown bought the ancient mill in 1827. His son John ran it for several years, but was badly injured when his house burned in 1852. After a few years, Silas Jr. resurrected the mill. It was destroyed in a wild fire in 1890. The blade from the sawmill was saved, and is at the tavern. Silas Jr. also made some diagrams of the workings of the mill, which Mrs. Dillaway reproduced with the Harnden Tavern Tales.

SAVING FOR RETIREMENT

Some good news, some bad news on retirement plans and, in some cases, no change at all.

The good news is that the income ceilings have gone up for Roth IRA contributions. The phaseouts start at $169,000 AGI to $179,000 for couples and $107,000 to $122,000 for singles. For regular IRAs, the deduction phaseout goes up slightly, too. Joint filers' phaseout range starts at $90,000 AGI and goes to $110,000. If only one spouse is covered by a plan, phaseouts for deducting contributions for the other one range from $169,000 to $179,000.

Other plan limits are unchanged: $15,500 for 401(k), 403(b) or 457 plans, or $22,000 for those born before 1962; $11,500 for SIMPLEs.

The not-so-good news is that the tax break for converting IRAs to Roth IRAs is gone. Convert this year or later and taxes will be due in the year of the conversion. If you still want to spread out the tax bite, you must spread out the conversion.

Good Guy Dinner Friday

Dear Editor,
The Wilmington Good Guy Committee would like to express our gratitude to all the Wilmington citizens who participated in our nomination process. Wilmington has a large number of eligible Good Guys, all who deserve to be recognized and honored. Unfortunately, only one Good Guy can be elected in any given year. If your candidate was not elected this year, do not be discouraged; try again next year. Several of the past Good Guys were nominated two or more years before they received the award.

Once again, we thank you for your participation in this year's Good Guy program. We look forward to seeing you at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Friday, May 13, 2011 at 6:30 P.M. to honor this year's recipient.

Betsy's Best Bets

by Betsy Woods McGuire

What's Your Hurry?

Spring - an experience in immortality.

(Henry David Thoreau).

It's that time of the year when I pull out my gardening books. Not instructional or informational - my gardening books number only two: "The Curious Gardener's Almanac" by Niall Edworthy and "The Wild Braid" by poet laureate Stanley Kunitz. Both books are inspirational, full of prose and poetry, folklore and fact. I never tire of reading these books - thumbing through the pages, not in any particular order, finding my favorite line or verse or tip, stopping after some of Stanley Kunitz's deepest poems to give the words time to sink in. Off and on I find myself going back for more throughout the summer.

Several years back I decided that my garden was complete, that I would not be expanding or trying to improve its looks. Most of the plants and shrubs are of the common everyday variety but the overall appeal is in the textures and shadows cast, the shapes and shades of green, the intermixing of ground covers, vines, tall spike-like stems and bushy growth - rocks, rock walls and walking paths. There are a few oddities though. Several still healthy flowering plants are between seventy and ninety years old, having come down in the family from my grandmother, to my mother, to me. And I have this exotic, elaborate Lespedeza, which is only hardy south of the Carolinas, that somehow acclimated to my back yard. Then there's my Doyle's thornless blackberry bush that is both curious and striking - sending out twenty-foot "laterals" that I tie up in crazy patterns all across a small area of the back yard. By late August tons of juicy berries cover the branches. Quite a sight.

It was a story (and pictures) about some very small back yards in Somerville that made me want to "grow-in" my approximately 20x40 part of the yard that is directly behind the house. The bigger part of the property is all to one side of the house, so when you come in you can't see the "hidden garden" until you walk right up to the back gate. More than once I've had a visitor stop dead with sheer unexpected surprise at the growth and "design" of this tiny space. The Lespedeza is in bloom at the same time that the blackberry bush is the biggest, so the effect is quite unusual.

However, being satisfied with things at home doesn't stop me from wanting to see other gardens - you know, the bus trips to those places with acres and acres of formal landscaping and forced flowers, and of course, a café and gift shop.

What makes Tower Hill Botanical Gardens in Boylston, Massachusetts my favorite large-scale private garden to visit again and again is that the gardens are "always in season," as their slogan goes. I wondered what that meant until my first visit, which was in November. From the minute we pulled into the parking lot the ooing and ahhhing and OMG-look-at-that never stopped. Everywhere unfamiliar showy evergreens lined the paths and fields. Many had irregular bark with strange characteristics and colors, some were covered with blue or red berries, a dramatic contrast against the starkness of early winter. Several times the thought crossed my mind, can you imagine the beauty of this place after a snow storm? And then there's an 18th century-style cool greenhouse filled with winter flowering plants and sub-tropical plants from October through May. After winter, from spring to fall, there are thousands of bulbs, trees, shrubs and apple orchards in bloom - meadow wildflowers, perennials, annuals, vegetables, ornamental grasses and fall foliage. Inside is the Entry Garden and Court, Education and Visitors Center, gift shop and café.

Making a day of it, in my opinion, is the best way to visit Tower Hill. This requires taking Rt. 62 all the way, a scenic slow trip, stopping at farm stands, little shops and stores and interesting sights. I happen to love Rt. 62, all 80 miles, from the city of Beverly on the coast to Barre in North Central Worcester County. For some quirky personal reason, I like to be able to say that I've driven some route from one end to the other, like Rt. 62. The most extreme example of this is my claim-to-fame drive on Rt. 1 from the Canada border all the way to Key West, where I stopped and had a picture taken of me beside the one-mile marker. Also, pretty impressive if I do say so myself, is that I've driven all of Rt. 80 from New Jersey to California ...Gee, maybe I was a Greyhound bus driver in another life!

Whenever I drive, secondary roads are my preference - as the song goes, "It's not the getting there, it's the going." Why race down the highway when back roads in rural towns and congested city neighborhoods are so interesting and alive with the real thing - Americana, the stuff of movies and books.

Okay, how about this spring's exceptional panorama of flowering trees, ground phlox, tulips and daffodils? Just think, it was last winter's heavy snow cover and then the slow melting that's behind such an outstanding show of color this spring. I can't wait to return to the Tower Hill Botanical Gardens for my first "seasonal" visit, with many more to follow, straight through winter. How great to live in New England, to follow the seasons with anticipation, to watch nature unfold like clockwork. Kind of reassuring, isn't it?

MEANWHILE, AT THE MASS AUDUBON BIRD-A-THON...

Bird-a-thon competition kicks off May 13th

Long before there was Twitter, there was Bird-a-thon. On May 13, Mass Audubon kicks off its 24-hour Bird-a-thon in which teams contend to spot the most species in the state. This fun, annual event for people of all abilities and ages, offers birders and nature enthusiasts the opportunity to participate in friendly competition while raising much needed funds for Mass Audubon's wildlife sanctuaries and programs.

"Bird-a-thon is a celebrated annual tradition at Mass Audubon," says Mass Audubon President Laura Johnson. "Each year, Bird-a-thon involves more people and raises more money than the previous year, but the one thing that is a constant is the enthusiasm and generosity of our participants."

Last year, 650 enthusiastic birders spread out across the state to record a total of 268 species, while raising over $170,000. This year, the goal is to raise $175,000. Mass Audubon will also award numerous participant prizes.

The 24-hour competition starts at 6 p.m. on Friday, May 13, and runs through 6 p.m. on Saturday, May 14. Even if you can't join a team, you can still participate by pledging money to a team member. Fellow birders and supporters can also keep up with team members during the event by following the hashtag #birdathon on Twitter.

To make a donation, join a team, see a list of prizes, or get more information, visit www.massaudubon.org/birdathon.

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

Thumbs down to the parents of the Wilmington High School students that are now clogging Adams Street dropping off their precious kids. People going to work daily now have a traffic jam of parents who believe either their kids are too uneducated to find the high school if they drop them off at the student parking lot as requested by the school, or are too out of shape to do the walk from the parking lot. You are disrupting the bus drop-off area and causing unnecessary delays for people trying to get to work. Stop babying your kids and drop them off where the school has asked you to.

Tewksbury Police Department launches special statewide high-visibility Click It or Ticket enforcement blitz

TEWKSBURY - Massachusetts is Getting Tough on All Drivers and Passengers in an Effort to Boost Seat Belt Use and Save Lives

As part of a nationwide effort to save lives, the Tewksbury Police Department, in partnership with the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security's (EOPSS) Highway Safety Division (HSD), the State Police and nearly 190 other local departments, is launching a high-visibility seat belt enforcement blitz called Click It or Ticket. The message is simple: Massachusetts drivers and passengers should always wear their seat belts or be ready to face the consequences.

This special crackdown, beginning May 23 and running through June 5, marks the first seat belt enforcement mobilization across the State this year, designed to increase seat belt use and decrease motor vehicle fatalities and injuries. Over 180 police departments and the State Police have adopted zero-tolerance policies for seat belt violations, signaling the increasing importance of the issue.

To compliment Tewksbury Police Department's effort, the Tewksbury School Department has agreed to work cooperatively with them by providing a series of home-room announcements to the students at the Tewksbury Memorial High School in the weeks prior to the enforcement mobilization prior to the prom and graduation season. These announcements, provided by the EOPSS HSD, are designed to educate student drivers and passengers about the enforcement mobilization and to raise the level of awareness about the necessity of seat belt usage.

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), based on known usage, 52 percent of the passenger vehicle occupants killed in motor vehicle crashes in Massachusetts during 2009 were not wearing their seat belts at the time of the crash, three percent higher than the national average.

Although we see and hear about many of the risks our nation's youth population encounters every day, one of the greatest dangers they face is being killed or severely injured in a motor vehicle crash. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), seat belts saved an astonishing 13,000 lives in 2009 alone. During that same year, 112 young drivers were killed in motor vehicle crashes in Massachusetts and another 447 young people were the victims of incapacitating injuries.

That's why the Tewksbury Police Department applied for a federal grant from EOPSS/HSD along with their national, statewide and local partners to conduct this special Click It or Ticket seat belt enforcement mobilization. Funded by EOPSS/HSD through a federal grant, stepped-up law enforcement activities will be conducted in late May and early June. So remember, if you are pulled over for violating traffic laws, law enforcement will be checking to make sure drivers and passengers are wearing their seat belts.

No more excuses.

RMLD meter upgrade continues in Wilmington

READING - During the first week of May, Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) will continue its meter upgrade project in Wilmington. Upgrades will occur on Alice, Cambridge, Medford, Revere, Somerville and Wakefield Avenues, Apache Way and Buckingham Road. During the upgrade, RMLD personnel will remove existing residential meters and install new ones.

Customers whose meters require replacement will experience a brief outage of five minutes during the upgrade. RMLD personnel will attempt to notify each customer by knocking on the front door of individual residences immediately before the meters are changed.

Scheduling information will be posted on the RMLD website www.rmlld.com and in the Wilmington newspapers. "While we hope to have a very fluid process, there is a possibility that areas scheduled for replacement may be rescheduled. We thank our customers for their patience during this project," said RMLD's Engineering and Operations Manager Kevin Sullivan.

"The meters scheduled for replacement are approximately 15 years old and are reaching the end of their useful life," Sullivan added. "The new meters will improve both efficiency and reliability, and will also offer the possibility of providing enhanced energy usage information to customers. If your meter has been replaced within the past few years, it may not need to be replaced."

Please visit the RMLD website at www.rmlld.com. Any questions or concerns should be directed to RMLD Customer Service at 781-944-1340 or 781-942-6598.

Deputy Chief John Voto joins national effort to combat crimes of violence against women TEWKSBURY - Deputy Chief John Voto has been chosen as one of 30 law enforcement executives from across the country to participate in the 14th National Law Enforcement Leadership Institute on Violence Against Women hosted by The International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP). Through the Institute experience, IACP intends to raise the response to violence against women crimes higher on law enforcement's agenda and support the adoption and maintenance of the best practices by the officers in the Tewksbury Police Department. Tewksbury Police Department is committed to providing the highest level of protection and service to all victims of crimes of violence and is constantly striving to approve its approach through education and innovative policing strategies.

During the four-day Institute taking place in Kansas City, MO, on May 15th-18th, Deputy Chief Voto, along with the other selected participants, will explore innovative approaches for investigating crimes of domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking. Additional attention will center on assessing agency performance and sharing challenges and solutions with law enforcement colleagues.

In an effort to help law enforcement agencies enhance their response to crimes of violence against women, the National Institute will focus on planning and methods for effective resource allocation to help crime victims and hold perpetrators accountable. The participating law enforcement executives will be engaged in the development of action plans throughout the Institute in order to adopt new strategies for pro-active coordinated community collaboration upon returning to their departments.

Expenses for participants to attend the Institute are covered under a grant to the IACP from the United States Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women. The Tewksbury Police Department extends its sincerest appreciation to the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) and the United States Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women for this invaluable training opportunity that comes at a time when lean budgets certainly would not otherwise provide for participation. Unfortunately, it is in tough economic times such as these that this type of training is most needed and we look forward to using the knowledge Deputy Voto returns with to provide additional resources to the citizens of our Community.

New Wilmington church opening May 22

WILMINGTON - Grace Chapel, located on the site of the former Casa di Fior, 128 West St., Wilmington plans to open its doors for services starting Sunday, May 22.

Grace Chapel is a non-denominational church that began nearly 60 years ago in Lexington, MA. Over the years the church has grown, increasing in size at the Lexington location, and planting independent churches:

Grace Community in Chelmsford, MA and Gracepoint in Andover. The launch of the Wilmington campus represents a recent trend in large churches around the country that have chosen to meet the needs of a growing congregation by opening campuses in communities approximately 20 minutes from one another. Led by a committed team of local Wilmington and Reading residents, the Wilmington campus will be a part of the same church, but with a local congregation serving the local community.

The Wilmington campus will be led by Pastor Tom VanAntwerp, a long time Grace Chapel associate, and a staff team that will help to support and develop various ministries for families that attend. There will be two Sunday morning worship services at 9:30 and 11am. Each hour will offer live worship and programs for children and youth. Grace Chapel's senior pastor Bryan Wilkerson will most often be delivering the message from the Lexington campus, which will be simulcast to the Wilmington site.

For more information about the new church, please visit www.grace.org

Colonial meetinghouses of New England

Wilmington Memorial Library, Tuesday, May 24 at 7:00 p.m.

WILMINGTON - Come meet New Hampshire-based photographer Paul Wainwright and learn about New England's Colonial meetinghouses - once the center of life in every New England town. The Wilmington Memorial Library will be hosting Mr. Wainwright on Tuesday, May 24 at 7:00 p.m. This program is free and open to all.

When built in the 1700s, Colonial meetinghouses were the focus of both religious and civic life - concepts not at all separate in Colonial New England. Many were built with tax money, and their simple, undecorated architecture reflected the desire of early Puritan settlers to live simple lives apart from the Church of England. Yet these were their "cathedrals," built by hand without adornment, except for the wonderful woodwork. Only a few of them remain in a relatively unchanged state.

These buildings embody an important chapter in American history. In them were formed the principles of our democracy and participatory government. In them the issue of separation of church and state was debated and tested. Wainwright's photography explores these structures and the society that built and used them. They not only present a fascinating glimpse into our nation's Colonial history, but are beautiful as well.

Wainwright's photographs, together with an historical essay by noted Colonial-era historian Peter Benes, have been published in the new book A Space for Faith: The Colonial Meetinghouses of New England (Peter E. Randall Publisher, www.aspaceforfaith.com). This book has recently won the New England Book Festival Award for best photography/art book of 2010.

Paul Wainwright is a photographer based in Atkinson, New Hampshire, who works in a traditional manner utilizing sheet film, a large-format camera, and silver gelatin printing. His work has appeared in numerous juried competitions and solo exhibitions, and is included in the permanent collections of both private and corporate collectors, including Fidelity Investments, the Boston Public Library, and the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston. He is a mostly self-taught photographer who brings to his images an eye for space and light, subtle details, and an appreciation of history. Through his photography, Wainwright's goal is to bring the story of an important yet little-known chapter of American history to a wide audience.

A Space for Faith has been produced with generous support from the New Hampshire Charitable Foundation, Mass Humanities, and the New Hampshire State Council on the Arts.

Free car care clinic at Jim Boudreau's

TEWKSBURY - When it comes to maintaining your car, knowledge is power.

Jim Boudreau's Automotive is presenting a car-care seminar to help women navigate the vehicle service experience with confidence.

Jim Boudreau's Automotive is providing a night out as well as some excellent practical vehicle maintenance advice for busy women. As part of the ACDelco "Knowledge is Power" program, the free seminar, which is June 8, 5:30 p.m., at 2184 Main Street, Tewksbury, MA, is designed to better acquaint women with vehicle maintenance needs and provide the information they require to take charge of their vehicle service needs with knowledge and confidence.

"We know many women may feel intimidated about vehicle maintenance, and we want to end that," said Jim Boudreau. "We'll provide a fun environment as well as valuable information that will empower them to discuss vehicle repairs and service. A well-maintained vehicle is safer and more dependable, and we don't want women to compromise their safety because they fear the service experience."

The "Knowledge Is Power" seminar covers everything from how to sense potential problems under the hood, to tips on how to communicate effectively with the service consultant. Registration is required as space is limited; for more information or to register, please contact Ed Santoro at 978-658-2120.

Wilmington toots it own horn

and beyond it's borders. The group wants to take the effort national with the help of the Teamsters.

Even Senator Scott Brown and General Mills from the United States Marine Corp heard about the program and got involved.

During the last trip, the group took WCTV with them to capture video of some of the joy the program has brought to faces. While at Walter Reed the group ran into a hometown boy, a Wilmington Police Officer who couldn't believe WCTV was filming at Walter Reed. They had an exclusive interview with the gentleman, who had suffered a stroke while in Afghanistan.

Veterans going through various treatments for a wide variety of ailments experience already struggle with the stressors that come with any injury.

"These iPods can hold 300 songs, a soldier can clip it on jonnies, and with earphones listen to music," said Cardello. "They were so appreciative of the people of Wilmington."

He continued, relaying a story about a soldier that was moved to tears when he read a letter from one of many students at the Woburn Street School.

"I appreciate all the work you've done. You're right, Wilmington is a great place to live," said Chairman Lou Cimaglia.

"Something like this, I'm not surprised, is taking off in Wilmington," said Michael Newhouse.

"If we didn't have the support of this board, we'd be dead in the water," said Williams.

Readers interested in donating to the iPods for Wounded Veterans project can find the organization on Facebook or contact Paul Cardello direction at 978-658-8743. Used iPods may also be dropped off at Rocco's restaurant.

Relay For Life:

The third annual relay for life is back on for June 17 at Wilmington High School. Joseph Martiniello, the Event Chair, explained that the American Cancer Society utilizes funds raised through programs like the Relay for Life to fund ride services for cancer patients to treatment centers, a "look good, feel good" program, lobbying services on Beacon Hill and across the country, funds research, and offers fellowships for cancer research.

In the first year Wilmington's Relay for Life raised over $160,000 and another $160,000 last year, making it one of the top-earning newcomers to the Relay in the state.

Donations have come in from as far away as New Jersey and Colorado.

"The generosity is amazing," said Martiniello.

Several groups received large corporate donations, including one $10,000 donation, enabling the team to double its goal.

Teams of 8 to 10 people gather at the track at 5:30 for a Welcome Ceremony. Walking around the track begins at 6:30. At all times each team must keep at least one team member walking on the track, all night long.

Entertainment will be provided for team members, including an inflatable moonwalk, a dunk tanks, Camp 40 Acres will help entertain small children and even local professional comedian, Stephen Bjork, will come out after a show and entertain the crowd.

More than ninety businesses in and out of Wilmington contribute to the events.

Cimaglia said it best when he stated, "this is just another reason to love the town."

"This is a good night because we get to brag all about our town." Said Mike Champoux.

Following the Relay for Life Lou Cimaglia was reelected to be chair based on the nomination by Champoux. The vote passed unanimously.

On Tuesday afternoon Wilmington High School students were invited to witness the aftermath of a mock crash as school officials seek to drive home the dangers of drinking and driving. Students take the parts of a DUI driver, and two victims, one who lives and one who dies. The expression on their faces shows how real the scene is as they watch a classmate being loaded into a hearse.

Local company swings hammers and shovels to help build affordable homes

BEDFORD, MA - Under sunny skies, employees from Thermo Fisher Scientific, the world leader in serving science, began swinging hammers for the second floor decking and interior walls and digging holes for soon-to-be front porches on two Habitat for Humanity homes. Thermo Fisher, which has over 1,400 employees in Massachusetts, is committed to giving back to the community. For five days this week, over 100 Thermo Fisher employees will be volunteering their time to help build two more Habitat homes in Bedford MA.

"The volunteers from Thermo Fisher are honored to put aside their day-to-day commitments at work because they understand how important the Habitat for Humanity program is. We believe very strongly in community-building, and this is one of the best ways we can put actions behind our words," said Dan Shine, president, Process Instruments, Thermo Fisher Scientific.

Also getting into the spirit of building on Monday was Congressman John Tierney. The Congressman was put to work hammering nails to complete the second floor deck to prepare the way for the building of the upstairs walls. Congressman Tierney said, "More than just a house, Habitat for Humanity provides families with a foundation from which they can build strong futures. I commend the volunteers from Thermo Fisher for lending their time at two home construction sites in Bedford today and applaud the valuable contributions that Habitat for Humanity has made in our communities. In a time of continuing need for affordable housing, I am encouraged by the volunteerism I saw today and, given the serious and ongoing foreclosure crisis facing our country, I remain committed to seeing that the federal government continues to provide support and assistance to those in need of affordable housing," said Congressman

John Tierney.

Habitat for Humanity of Greater Lowell will continue to build these two homes for the next 4-5 months. One of the homes being worked on is the Women Build. This house is being built mostly by women. Volunteers are needed for both homes and those interested may sign up on line at www.lowellhabitat.org. Click on the VolunteerUp button to register. Also under construction is a ReStore, located in Billerica MA. Plans to open this store will be late June. Those interested in volunteering to renovate this building are encouraged to sign up on line as well. Help is needed for both construction work as well as donations of items for the ReStore and monetary.

With 154,000 square feet, the building is kept humming in good shape by the dedicated staff, the expertise of the town's Department of Public Buildings, and the care of the students. However, the daily heavy use and aging structure and services make another renovation seem less a solution and more like delaying the inevitable.

The Crier saw numerous anachronisms in a modern school environment, such as exposed electrical conduit on gymnasium walls and protruding electrical boxes, HVAC equipment overhanging wrestling mats, patchwork flooring, water damaged ceilings and more.

Several girls pointed out pipes that drip over the doorway to the girls' locker room; the wrestling room and weight rooms are both too small for the size of the programs. According to Athletic Director, Ed Harrison, the weight room is about one quarter the size of what it should be.

Track players practice by running in the halls.

"The outdated facilities are a challenge. We're trying to join the 21st century here," said Harrison. "When we go to other schools we also see more technology integrated into the classrooms."

Technology instruction in various classes also poses a challenge, since the rooms were never designed for computers. Back in 1950 computing was in its infancy. What few computers even existed had vacuum tubes and filled an entire room. It was not until twenty years later that ARPANET was first launched, and which would later become the basis for the Internet. Slide rules did not become obsolete until 1972 when the first reasonably portable handheld calculator became available. Twenty-two years after Wilmington High School was built.

Computer labs at WHS do not have appropriate ventilation, enough electrical service, and have cords occasionally lying in dangerous places. Students generally sit with their backs to the teacher, not the ideal model for instruction. Further, the rooms are quite small, offering limited access to those classes that need the lab space, and many of the classrooms do not have any windows at all. Today, outlets are wired into the floors and walls to accommodate a variety of configurations for lab needs.

The teachers' lounge was subsumed for classroom space several years ago. There is just one miniscule room, with 5 seats, to offer 90 faculty members a place to sit down for lunch.

The Food Service Director for the district has her office at the high school, but gave up the space to create another classroom. Instead, the food service program for the district now runs out of the band uniform room, though the uniforms have been removed.

Storage in the high school is at a premium, with some department heads sitting with boxes stacked to the ceilings, musical instruments are stored in the band room and in the auditorium vestibule. The band room itself is small, tight for this year's 105 student enrollment and even more so for next year's projected 130 student participation.

"For many years, our art, music and theater programs have been limited by space constraints and deteriorating conditions. These deficiencies are reflected most significantly in the lack of rehearsal space in orchestra and chorus and specialized spaces to support the theatre arts," Benton told the Crier.

Suspended ceilings in most of the high school's rooms are unable to support the modern overhead projectors required to use interactive white board technology. At least one teacher had balanced her projector on a stack of books because the ceiling could not hold it.

With highly varied classroom sizes, scheduling classes becomes an incredible challenge in order to put the right classes in the right size classrooms with the right teachers, and ensuring the room can accommodate the number of students who need to take the class.

The nurses' office has virtually no privacy for student patients and barely enough room to turn around. The science labs were all built narrowly, and thus are too small to accommodate the instructional space and the experimental spaces.

Currently the high school building committee is wrestling with a decision to either renovate or build new. A resident put it succinctly at a previous public forum asking why squander an opportunity for the town to get fifty percent off the price of a new building.

"A new school not only brings the building up-to-date, but allows for future flexibility in curriculum, technology, and teaching methods. Building "Green" will reduce operational costs. It provides a more functional layout and improved circulation (reduced travel time = more time in the classroom)," explained Benton in an email to the Crier. "Fewer "surprises" are encountered during new construction versus renovation, and new provides a longer useful life.

"With a new high school, we have the opportunity to address all of these deficiencies and provide students with the optimum conditions in which to perform, compete and excel in their various creative capacities."

The next public forum is slated for May 12, 6:30 pm at the Wilmington High School Auditorium.

Each year as prom season approaches the local safety crews put on a graphic demonstration as to the consequences of drinking and driving. A student always "dies" in hopes that a real student will not have to. Here after cutting the roof off of a "crashed car" with the Jaws of Life, Wilmington EMT's tend to mock crash mock victim, Larissa Pienkowski. Photo by joebrownphotos.com

Wilmington remembers two terrific people

Fundraiser, scholarships in McDougall's honor

He touched so many lives

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

There is no telling just how many lives Paul "Scotty" McDougall touched during his all too short life. But to say the number is well into the hundreds and perhaps even into the thousands would not be an exaggeration.

McDougall, who died of a heart attack in October of 2007 at age 49, was a volunteer coach and board member for many years in Wilmington Youth Hockey and Little League Baseball, as well as the Junior Warrior Hockey program. But his crowning achievement in his service to the youth of Wilmington came in 2005, when he and four other Wilmington parents started the first ever youth lacrosse league in Wilmington.

Prior to 2005 there was no lacrosse program of any kind in Wilmington either at the youth or high school level, but thanks to the efforts of McDougall as well as his fellow volunteers the sport of lacrosse has now grown in Wilmington in much the same way it has throughout the rest of the country. Today, the Wilmington Youth Lacrosse Association has more than 225 players, both boys and girls, aged 8-15, while both the boys and girls lacrosse teams at Wilmington High are thriving with their influx of new players, many of who are WYLA alumni.

On Friday, June 17, many of those former WYLA players and their parents, as well as countless other friends and family members will get a chance to thank McDougall for all he did for the program in a fund raiser being held at Montvale Plaza in Stoneham, with all of the proceeds going to benefit the Wilmington Youth Lacrosse Scott McDougall Scholarship Program, which was established last year in McDougall's memory.

The scholarship program will award two $1,000 scholarships per year, to one male and one female graduating senior at Wilmington High. It was originally established by WYLA last year with a $500 award going to each winner, but McDougall's wife Sheila and son Dan agreed to match that amount and make it a $1,000 award. The hope with the June 17 fundraiser is to establish a fund that will support the scholarship program for years to come.

A scholarship in McDougall's honor seems to be the perfect way to remember a man who committed much of his life to making youth sports accessible to the young people of Wilmington.

Mike Leighton, the current President of WYLA, knows the impact that McDougall's contributions had on WYLA and is very happy the scholarship will be continued for years to come.

"Scotty brought so much to our organization and to our program," Leighton said.

Scotty McDougall (left) passed away in October of 2007, yet his life continues to be honored in town. McDougall, who helped start up lacrosse in Wilmington with his longtime buddy Mike Leighton, right, has two scholarships in his memory, which will be given out at next month's fundraising event. (courtesy photo).

"This scholarship is such a great way to keep his name alive and to honor him. It is so well deserved."

And Leighton also knows that McDougall would be proud to see what WYLA has become in the years since it was first established.

"Scotty would think that it is just amazing what has happened here," Leighton said. "I know he would love to see how many kids have gone on to college and some of the kids have gotten into college because of lacrosse. I imagine that right now he would be so proud. He was just such a huge part of it."

Wilmington High Boys Varsity Lacrosse Coach Mike Fay, a WYLA board member, who up until last year was the league Vice President, knows how much the youth of Wilmington meant to McDougall and sees it as very fitting that a scholarship in his honor will continue to help members of the Wilmington community.

"He cared very deeply for youth recreational sports in

Kim Forte Memorial Walk/Run, Sunday

By: LAUREN SPENCER
Sports Correspondent

There are few people in Wilmington who haven't seen Kim Forte traveling the streets of town at one point or another. She could always be spotted walking or riding her bike, and was well-known by all. But this past winter, tragedy fell upon Wilmington when the avid walker was struck and killed by a car while on a walk home from the gym. So what better way to honor the town celebrity than coming together as a community, and replicating her favorite pastime?

Thanks to the Women of Wilmington organization, on this Sunday, May 15th, that is exactly what the Wilmington community will do. The (WOW) organization will be sponsoring the First 5K Run for Wilmington/Kim Forte Walk, to celebrate the life of Forte by walking the neighborhoods she navigated every day.

"A lot of our members and a lot of our board members [of WOW] knew [Forte] through the RMA (Fitness Center in Wilmington), and through different activities, so for our inaugural year they wanted to honor her as well," said WOW president, Jomarie O'Mahony. "Everyone in town has seen her walking or riding her bike, so we figured if named the walk portion after her that would be very fitting."

"That was who she was," added Michelle Bryan, WOW vice president. "She was always walking, and we thought that a walk would be a great way to honor her."

The Women of Wilmington is a non-profit organization that began about six months ago. They strive to help members of the community, promote service projects, and assist other non-profit groups in town. O'Mahony said the organization was originally planning to hold a 5K road race simply as a way to bring people together to raise money for the community, but after Forte passed away, they thought that including her memory in the event would be very appropriate.

"Wilmington has a September road race," she said, "but there are not a lot of other spring activities, so we were really trying to think of something that we could do outside in the spring time that would bring a lot of people together in one central place, and a road race seemed like a logical thing. And then with incorporating Kim's memory into it, it just seemed like a nice tribute. We think it's the first kind of public tribute that we can give to her so that her family and her friends can see the number of people whose lives she touched."

The WOW members noted how Forte's family has already been extremely thankful for the community's efforts.

"They have been very appreciative, they have opened their family to us and they have been really great," Bryan said. "[Kim's] husband, Lou, has been especially wonderful, very appreciative and appreciates everything we are doing."

"I know [Kim's] husband has said he's amazed with how many people tell him that they remember her from the gym or they remember her from walking,

Bozzella named UML Female Athlete of the Year

Senior Brianne Bozzella, of Wilmington, was named the recipient of the Laurie Mann Award for the Female Student-Athlete of the Year Tuesday night at the UMass Lowell Excellence Awards Night at the Costello Athletic Center.

The Laurie Mann Award is presented to the outstanding UMass Lowell female student-athlete who excel in the classroom, playing field, exemplify leadership as well as give back to the University and City of Lowell communities. The award is named after Laurie Mann, a member of the UML women's basketball team from 1993-95, who passed away in 1998 after a long battle with cancer.

Bozzella -- the reigning Town Crier Female Athlete of the Year -- was among three finalists for the honor including Amy Delgado (Bridgewater, Mass.) and Jillian Hadder (Yucapia, Ca.) of the volleyball team.

As the UMass Lowell women's soccer team's leading scorer the last two years, Brianne Bozzella attacked opposing defenses with ferocity and conviction. She approached her schoolwork and her service to the University in the same way with outstanding results.

A three-year starter at forward, Bozzella burst out her junior season and never looked back, compiling 13 goals and eight assists in leading the River Hawks to a 20-13-6 clip the last two years.

"There really is no secret to Brianne's steady improvement from her sophomore to her senior year," said Head Coach Elie Monteiro. "She dedicated herself to stepping up her off-season fitness routine and getting in better shape than ever. She took on board the suggestions we made to get her more comfortable on the ball, especially in front of the goal, and worked on improving those areas during our individual sessions and in practice."

Last fall, Bozzella scored seven goals and set up four others and saved her best for later in the season. On the brink of missing the Northeast-10 Conference Tournament, Bozzella scored a goal in a 3-0 win over Pace as well as the goal in a pivotal 1-0 victory over Assumption to secure the No. 7 seed.

Bozzella set up Amy Cramer's goal in the 88th minute of UMass Lowell's 1-1 first round draw at No. 2 Merrimack to force extra time, before Merrimack advanced after winning the penalty shootout.

She earned a spot on the NE-10 All-Conference Second Team and drew the most votes among Division II players for the New England Women's Intercollegiate Soccer Association (NEWISA) All-Star Team and Senior Bowl.

"She would not allow herself to be outworked in any capacity," said Head Coach Elie Monteiro. "She supported her teammates and demanded they match her effort."

Bozzella has been near flawless as a student, evidenced by her 3.92 cumulative average in exercise physiology. The recipient of many academic plaudits, she has twice been named to the NE-10 Women's Soccer All-Academic Team and received the National Student-Athlete Day Award for women's soccer the last three years.

WHS Sports Round-Up

Softball teams wins two games in dramatics

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School Girls Softball team had two dramatic victories, sandwiched inbetween a non-league loss this past week. On almost identical scenarios, the Wildcats defeated both Pentucket, 3-1, and Triton, 1-0, but fell to Tewksbury, 10-5. The 2-1 record puts Wilmington at 6-4 overall.

Against Pentucket, Wilmington was being no-hit until the bottom of the seventh inning. At that time, Pentucket led 1-0 with the lone player crossing the plate in the sixth inning. Down by a run in the top of the seventh, Tori Lord led off the inning by reaching on an infield error. Emily Crannell was then told by head coach Audrey Cabral-Pini that she had one swing, before she would be instructed to bunt. Crannell made the most of the swing by smacking a double to break up the no-hitter. Then after two bunts by Taylor Hanley and Jen Stewart, sophomore Jackie Kennedy was the hero as she drove in both runs on a double giving the Wildcats the win.

Lord as the winning pitcher as she gave up just one run on seven hits.

On Saturday, Wilmington was defeated by Tewksbury, 10-5.

Then on Monday night, the Wildcats played phenomenal, converting three double plays before winning the game in the bottom of the seventh inning walk-off style. Again Lord led off the game winning inning by reaching first on an infield error. Again

Crannell was told she had one swing, and this time she missed that first attempt and then put down a sacrifice bunt moving Lord to second. After a base hit by Hanley, Stewart then drove in Lord with the game winning walk-off single (would have been a two-run double).

Lord was magnificent on the mound as she tossed a complete game shut out, giving up seven hits.

"The Triton game was just unbelievable," said Cabral-Pini. "We pulled off two double plays on line drives, we had a 5-3-5 double play from third to first to third, and we dodged bullets all day long. Triton had seven hits and we only had one and that came in the last inning once again."

WHS Girls Track

The Wilmington High School Girls Track-and-Field team was defeated by a very good North Andover team, 93.5-51.5 throughout the rain last Wednesday.

Wilmington had a handful of winners including Cat Parella in the high jump (4-10), Sydnee Russo in the mile with a season best time of 5:58.6, Kelly Hartsough in the 800 (2:35) and Erin Cowden in the discus as she had a mark of 72-4.

The Wildcats also a handful of other strong performances. Parella also swiped a second place in the pole vault as she cleared 7-6. Maye Randell took a second in both the long jump (4-11) and 200 (27.9), while she also took third in the triple jump. Savannah Hubbard placed second in the 400 meter hurdles (76.0) and third in the 100-meter hurdles (18.6). Cali Pepper placed second in the 400 (64.1), Nikki Sirignano qualified for states in the two mile with a time of 12:33, good for second place, and Melanie Folk was second in the shot put (26-7) and third in the discus (66 feet).

Rounding out the scoring included a second place in the javelin by Lauren Bennett and third places by Rachel Alatalo in the 200, Catrina Fryer in the 100 and Kaitlin Cowden in the shot put.

WHS Baseball

The Wildcats were shut out by both Pentucket (6-0) and Triton (4-0) before junior Vin Scifo tossed his second straight shut out defeating Manchester-Essex, 5-0, on Tuesday afternoon. The 1-2 week puts Wilmington at 5-6 overall.

Scifo improved to 3-0 on the season with his complete game shut out, which included five strikeouts. Offensively, he had a double and he was helped out by junior catcher Dalton Rolli who hit his first homer of the season, a solo blast over the center-field fence capping off a three-run inning for the Wildcats. Rolli, Andy Owens and Phil Lentini each had two hits in the win.

Scifo had a double and an RBI. Rolli and Andy Owens each had 2 hits and an RBI. Phil Lentini also had two hits for Wilmington (5-6).

Bozzella named UML Athlete of the Year

Between her academic and soccer commitments, Bozzella found time to serve on UMass Lowell's Student-Athlete Advisory Committee as the NE-10 SAAC representative.

Among her work within the committee was helping the women's soccer team raise funds for its Bowling for Wishes effort, which benefitted the Make-A-Wish Foundation; as well as her work at the Bartlett School Extended Day Program, at which she spent time with students and helped organize activities.

As the NE-10 SAAC representative, Bozzella attended meetings with other NE-10 SAAC members to discuss new NCAA legislation, which she relayed back to UMass Lowell's committee.

Bozzella was inducted into the Omicron Delta Kappa Leadership Honor Society in 2010 and has also been active in its community service efforts.

"Boz puts every ounce of her ability into her studies, her work with the SAAC and her performances on the field," Monteiro said. "She's been an incredible leader and will be missed greatly."

A graduate of Wilmington H.S., Bozzella is the daughter of Mike and Lisa Bozzella of Wilmington, Mass.

The switch to Middlesex League

Baseball program could have schedule headaches

By JON HINES
Daily Times Chronicle

The Arlington High and Wilmington High baseball teams may not be completely aware of it yet, but the two soon-to-be Middlesex League programs are going to have somewhat of an impact that extends beyond the league slate.

As the ML switches to two, six-team divisions over the summer, many programs are going to retool their approach to non-league opponents.

Playing division opponents twice and other ML teams only once, the 16-game league calendar creates four open dates instead of just two. Now, current Middlesex League teams are going to have to look for two more games.

"The jury is out; we want to give it the benefit of the doubt. I just know it's going to be a lot different," said Winchester coach Dave Blanchard. "Scheduling is going to be more of a challenge. It could take a year or two to get used to it. That's one of the challenges, to figure out what's best for your program. Some guys will maybe play outside the Middlesex League. Other guys will want to stay with what they know."

Burlington has been playing two games against Concord-Carlisle for its non-league opponent, but the Red Devils are concerned about being in the small division.

In with Wakefield, Melrose, Stoneham, Watertown and now Wilmington, in the small division, the Devils are hoping to set up second games against some of the ML's large division teams that will not count as league games.

"We're not too happy about it. It's controversial; we don't feel we belong there (but) they did it by enrollment, not strength of program," said Burlington coach Jim Curtin. "It will weaken some programs. We won't be getting the kids we have been getting. More kids may go to private schools. We've done well against the larger schools and we want to continue to do well against them. There is talk about playing (some of) the larger-school teams twice, if they'll play us."

A possibility for the Red Devils is adding Billerica, or maybe another team from the Merrimack Valley Conference.

"We've scrimmaged Billerica twice every year; we could play them," said Curtin. "We'll probably fill it with as many Middlesex League teams as we can, then maybe Merrimack Valley teams. We want to continue to get 20 good games."

While most of the baseball rivalries will be intact, many will also be compromised. Woburn and Winchester will still play twice, but Reading is going to play old foe Stoneham only once.

"As an old-timer, I guess, and someone who goes back to playing in the Middlesex League, I love the 10-team format. I love the rivalries that we have, with various teams, not just Stoneham and Lexington," said Reading coach Pete Moscariello. "Every game's a battle, that's what I love about the Middlesex League."

"Everyone respects each other (and) everyone wants to beat each other; it's awesome." Reading and Woburn are considering the possibility of starting up their own two-day tournaments to fill the void.

Looking to the example of Wilmington's Scanlon Tournament and Belmont's Brendan Grant Tournament, the Tanners are considering their own tournament.

"We're looking at a Memorial Day weekend tournament at Carroll Field or Ferullo Field," said Woburn coach Wayne Pandolph. "There was talk about playing the smaller schools but I have no idea what the schedule will look like (and) when the open dates will fall, but we need four instead of two. We're looking into playing a couple smaller division teams; we've been playing them for years. There's a lot of unknown out there."

For Woburn, its traditional rivalry with Winchester will remain intact with two games, but the Tanners will play Burlington only once. History has also shown that the teams of the smaller schools are often just as competitive as the larger ones.

"I'm kind of old school. I wasn't a fan of expanding the league; it's nice to play a home and away with Melrose and Burlington," said Pandolph. "Some of the smaller schools are beating the bigger schools. Football is where the numbers factor in. With baseball, you don't need that many kids. In basketball, every year, Watertown (the small ML school) is near the top of the league."

It was a relatively short time ago that Stoneham was in the running for the ML crown in baseball with regularity. Reading will miss playing the Spartans twice a season.

"Melrose beat us in a great game (Tuesday) and we'd like a chance to play them again — same with anyone else," said Moscariello. "People forget that in the '60s and '70s, the Reading-Stoneham rivalry was incredible and in the '90s it was off the chart when we were trading state championships. I'm sad about not playing Stoneham twice."

At least many ML teams already have a good working relationship with Wilmington and coach Aldo Caira. Wakefield has been playing a two-game series with the Wildcats — splitting this year — and Reading plays at their tournament.

"They have the same caliber program as we have," said Wakefield coach Dennis Bisso. "They've always given us a battle. They'll be good for the Middlesex League."

Reading might just count its game in the Scanlon Tournament as an ML game, playing Wilmington in the semifinals every year.

"We'll talk about that as a possibility (but) we'd love to host a tournament here (at Morton Field) over Memorial Day," said Moscariello. "We have a great facility. We could make it a real nice event (and) I'd like to show off this field."

Arlington also appears to be a sensible match for the ML, right next door to Winchester and Belmont. The Spy Ponders will remain a mystery for another nine months, though.

The Sachems, meanwhile, are hoping to stay in the Grant Tournament, but stop playing Medford. They scrimmage Beverly every season.

"I'm not decided; we would be willing to play anyone (twice) in the Middlesex League (small), but it would be cool to explore teams outside the league as well," said Blanchard. "We're fortunate because Woburn and us are both in the large division."

A 16-game league schedule also leaves programs open to various approaches when it comes to their junior varsity and freshman teams.

"I always try to get my sub-varsity teams to play as many as possible — 20 if we can do it," said Blanchard. "We're always going to schedule extra games."

The Rockets are also going to try to get in a full slate of 20 games for their junior varsity and freshman teams.

"Twenty games is not a lot of baseball (with) not a lot of opportunity to get everybody in and use all your roster the way you would if you played 30 games," said Moscariello. "We're not looking to cut back; our JV and freshmen, who are at the developmental stage, we need them to play games."

All of these various scenarios are still to be played out. As for now, the local teams will carry on like they have for decades, at least for another month.

"The kids haven't really talked about it yet," said Curtin. "They're too focused on what they're doing now, which is competing in the Middlesex League this year."

Youth Softball League ready for fun season

By CHRIS RICCIARDI
Sports Correspondent

Several years ago, the Wilmington Youth Softball League was a member of National Little League. However, the league decided to switch to the American Softball Association, a separate organization, three years ago.

According to League president Tim MacDougall, the change was based on what the league wanted, and he also said that the league has benefited.

"We changed (our affiliation) because the A.S.A. is format is more in line with what high schools and colleges have for rules," MacDougall said. "It also involves safety as head cages are required by A.S.A. We felt it was a better fit for (us) rather than Little League."

The season opened up on May 1, 2011, as the softball teams participated in the Opening Day parade along with Little League. MacDougall said that the parade was a success for the softball league. He also said that he is interested in having the parade lead to a softball field one year.

Both the Wilmington Little League and Wilmington Youth Softball operate under a single board of directors, which MacDougall said is more efficient. He serves as both registrar and as and as vice-president of softball. Although Rick Hill serves as the board's president, MacDougall is the highest softball official.

One of the major events occurring in the league this season occurs near the end of the year, as the softball league plays several games under the lights.

"Near the season's end, we can secure some permits for night games," MacDougall said. "We'll have a couple of All-Star games under the lights. There will also be some regular games. We announce the starting line-ups over the P.A. system and we have a great time."

The league has lost some players this season. Rather than looking at the negative, MacDougall prefers to look towards the positives.

"We probably lost between 60-80 players this season," MacDougall said. "However, we had 19 teams last year, and we have 20 this season. We opened up a under-eight division. We felt that a little more could be added. Wilmington parents probably aren't allowing their kids to play more than three sports (every year). In years' past, we needed the (larger) rosters since some kids didn't show up. Now we've been able to drop roster numbers, but we always have enough players. This means players spend less time on the bench and more time playing."

The league is divided into four divisions, all of which are based on age. There is a U8 division, a U10 division, a U12 division, and also a U14 division.

Unlike some other programs, the league isn't currently involved with post-season tournaments. This is because the league is currently working to organize itself according to ASA rules.

"It's currently (an) in-house (tournament) right now, but hopefully we'll expand beyond that," MacDougall said. "For years, we didn't even have a summer program. When things usually picked up, when kids began to get really good, the season was already over. We started a summer program with only one team. It has really grown (since then)."

The league currently has three summer teams, and MacDougall said that those who play in the summer have "a dedicated love of softball."

The softball league's summer program participates in the Middlesex League. Wilmington's teams play other towns in various age groups, and MacDougall said it was a good fit for both parents and players.

Although it is too late to sign up for spring softball, MacDougall said that parents who want to get their kids involved in the league should look for information on summer softball, which should be released near the end of the school year.

Another fun season of Wilmington Youth Softball has begun, including several teams participating in last week's parade. (photos by Bill Ryerson, ryepix@verizon.net).

Wilmington Children to pedal for a cure once again

By LAUREN SPENCER
Sports Correspondent

When you're eight years old, making a substantial difference in a cancer patient's life seems hard to do. But when you combine your efforts with those of a hundred others, the task becomes a whole lot easier.

Next Sunday, May 22, Sue Hendee and the Wilmington community plan to provide young children with the opportunity to join together and change lives, as they will host their sixth annual Pan Mass Challenge Kids' Ride at the Boutwell Elementary School.

"It's the perfect example of a lot of people doing a little bit, and still having a tremendous impact," said Hendee, who co-organizes the event with Carolyn Priem, mother of a former child cancer patient.

"Our ride raised $18,000 last year, but all of the kids rides combined last year raised over $800,000," continued Hendee. "It's just a great way for kids to see that even if they can't raise thousands and thousands of dollars by themselves, if they can raise 50 or 100 or 200 dollars, whatever they can do, we can put it all together and it becomes a tremendous amount of money."

While the standard Pan Mass Challenge bike rides feature riders starting around age 13, the PMC Kids Rides are a way to incorporate the community's younger cyclists in the mission to support and raise money for cancer research and treatment. Nearly 30 eastern coast towns hold PMC Kids Rides each year. The proceeds benefit patients who are being treated at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, through the Jimmy Fund. It introduces the virtues of charity and helping others to children at a younger age.

But Hendee is no stranger to the charity, or to the Pan Mass Challenge. This summer will mark her 21st PMC bike ride. She began riding in 1990, after her mother died of breast cancer in 1988. So in 2005, she decided that organizing a PMC Kids Ride in Wilmington would be a great benefit to the community.

"It's for a charity that I feel very strongly about, and I think [the rides] are very well run," she said. "It raises an incredible amount of money for an extremely good cause, and teaching in town, teaching physical education, I just thought it was a logical thing to try to bring [a Kids Ride to Wilmington]. [The PMC] started doing Kids Rides about six or seven years ago, and I started it with Carolyn Priem, whose son (Brad) was being treated at Dana Farber Cancer. I knew that her son had been treated in the past, and we were talking one day and decided we would try to give it a shot, and it has worked out very, very well."

In past years, Wilmington's rendition of the event usually sees about 100 kids ranging from pre-school aged, to sixth graders. Each rider pays a $15 registration fee, (with a family cap of $40), and while there is a suggested fundraising minimum of $15, participants try to donate as great of an amount as they are able to raise, in order to support the many cancer patients in need.

Last year, Hendee said they had a goal of raising $15,000, and exceeded that by bringing in $18,000. This year, the Wilmington community will strive to raise $20,000, but as participation levels are relatively consistent with around 100 riders each year, Hendee is hoping to expand the invitation to ride to children in surrounding communities, so more kids have the chance to contribute in making a difference.

"What we're trying to do this year is bring Tewksbury into our ride to try to expand it and get more kids," she said. "We're trying to branch out and get more towns [involved]."

Another addition to this year's ride will be the Wilmington PMC Kids Rides' official pedal partner, Lyndsey Pettengill. A pedal partner is a child who has been treated at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. She was diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukemia at age three, and is now six years old and in the first grade. All cyclists at the Wilmington event will ride in Pettengill's honor and inspiration, and for the second year in a row, she will be strong enough to ride alongside them.

The ride is intended to serve as a way to raise great amounts of money for cancer patients in need, but also as a fun community event. Hendee said the Wilmington community has always been great at combining the two.

"Wilmington is very, very supportive of all kinds of charities," she said. "They have raised an incredible amount of money for many different events, a lot of times for very unfortunate events. But I think Wilmington is just a very caring community, they really care about the people that are within the community, and they have always come through every year that we have done something."

To support the efforts of making it a fun community event for such a caring town, this year's ride will feature face painting, music, and refreshments. The course is marked by continuous loops beginning by the Boutwell Elementary School, heading down Carter Lane and continuing through the Wilmington Middle School and West Elementary School grounds. The children can ride the one-mile loop as many times as they wish during their allotted time period.

Kindergartners and first graders will ride from 9:00 to 9:30. Second graders and third graders will ride from 9:45 to 10:30. Fourth through sixth graders will ride from 10:45 to 11:45. There will also be a route for "tykes on trikes" set up on the Boutwell School tennis courts from 9:00 to approximately 10:00. Hendee said that the kids are always very supportive of one another, and cheer on the age groups who are riding while they wait for their turns.

Hendee also said that her volunteer support has been very strong as well. She coaches the girls' varsity soccer team at Wilmington High School, and has recruited some of her players to come and help out. A friend of hers, Maureen Noone, who coaches Andover High School's field hockey team, has also recruited some athletes to assist on the day of the ride.

But in the end, the day is dedicated to helping others, whether it is in a big or small way.

"We understand that in this economy, donations are difficult for people," said Hendee. "But every little bit that we put together adds to the pot, and our goal for all of the Kids Rides this year is to try to hit a million dollars, so we are going to keep trying."

For more information or to register for this year's ride, go to: kids.pmc.org and click on Wilmington Ride.

Devlin's bat helps UML past Merrimack

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

Pat Devlin went 2-for-4 with two runs and an RBI as the former Tewksbury High standout helped lead the UMass Lowell baseball team to a 7-0 shutout win over Merrimack on Thursday afternoon. Devlin, a redshirt sophomore, laced an RBI single in the sixth inning to give the River Hawks a 6-0 lead. The right fielder has seen action in 32 out of his team's 45 games as he missed the beginning of the season due to injury.

Devlin is batting .264 with 14 runs and eight RBI so far this season. He is also 4/5 in stolen base attempts.

On Saturday, Tewksbury's Vinny DePierro was a hard-luck loser as the lefthander received no run support in a 2-0 defeat against Southern Connecticut State. DePierro only gave up one earned run while scattering three hits and striking out six in 6 2/3 innings of work.

The River Hawks boast a solid record of 35-10 and wrapped up the regular season on Wednesday against New Haven.

Worcester State's Kevin Maciel set a school record in the 400 meter hurdles as he finished in ninth place in the Division III New England Championships in Cambridge on Friday.

The freshman from

WILMINGTON & TEWKSBURY

Tewksbury clocked a time of 55.38, which bested the previous school record of 55.80. He also earned Division III honors as a member of the 4x800 meter relay team that finished in eighth place with a time of 3:24.34.

Wilmington's Jon Parella, a sophomore, also competed for Worcester State at the event as he finished in 19th place in the 400 meter hurdles with a time of 58:02.

Nick Farnsworth continued his strong form at the javelin for the Harvard men's track team at the Heptagonal Championships at Yale University in New Haven, Conn. over the weekend.

Farnsworth, a junior from Wilmington, finished in fourth place with a throw of 63.13 meters in the event. He finished in eighth place the previous week at the Penn Relays with a throw of 63.84 meters.

The Crimson are back in action this weekend as athletes will compete in both the ECAC and IC4A Championships.

Tewksbury's Kristin Judge also had a strong showing at the Heptagonal Championships as the junior high jumper at the University of Pennsylvania tied a career best at the event.

Judge cleared 1.70 meters in her first attempt at that height, which matched her fourth place position in her school's record book. She finished in fourth on Saturday and earned four points for the Quakers.

Judge and her Quaker teammates will head to the ECAC Championships in Princeton, N.J. this weekend.

Four local college runners had standout performances for the UMass Lowell women's track team at the Northeast-10 Championships last weekend.

Tewksbury's Karie Judge, a freshman, placed fifth in the open 800 meters with a time of 2:21. She also ran the lead-off leg in the 4x800 meter relay with a split of 2:23. She was joined on that team with Wilmington sophomore Colleen Kennedy, who ran a split of 2:33. That relay team finished with a time of 9:51, which was good enough for second place.

Sarah Bonomo, a senior from Tewksbury, placed seventh in the 5,000 meters with a time of 18:57. Nicole Skotz, a sophomore from Tewksbury, finished in eighth place in the 1,500 meters with a time of 5:03.

Wilmington's Jeff Silveria was named the "Most Improved Player" in men's tennis at the 18th annual Wheelock College Student-Athlete Recognition Banquet on Thursday.

Silveria, a 25-year-old junior who never played tennis competitively until this year, went 1-7 for the Wildcats this season.

Tewksbury freshman Lauren DiCredico went four-plus innings while only giving up two runs for the Salem State softball team in an 8-0 loss to Worcester State on Thursday.

DiCredico scattered three hits while striking out one in her outing. She didn't issue a walk. She finishes the season with an 11-5 record while posting a 3.74 ERA in 22 appearances.

Tewksbury's Linda Jennings finished in ninth place, and was the first woman to cross the finish line, in Saturday's "MSL Race Judicata 5K" in Andover. She ran a time of 19:57 and was the only local in a field of over 100.

Four locals, including three from Wilmington, competed in Sunday's "M.O.M.'s 5K" in Somerville on Sunday. Wilmington's John Gorvin finished in 37th place with a time of 21:22. Tewksbury's Katherine Troiano crossed the line in 216th place at 30:04. Ryan Clark of Wilmington finished in 222nd place with a time of 30:23, while Kathleen Gorvin's time of 34:58 was good enough for 297th place.

A number of Tewksbury and Wilmington women celebrated Mother's Day by competing in the "Melrose Run for Women" on Sunday. Four runners from Tewksbury took part in the race. Rose Ryan finished in 77th place with a time of 28:03. Jen Kistner's time of 36:17 placed her 408th. Pam Vetrano placed 553rd with a time of 40:48. Mary Ellen O'Connor finished with a time of 54:10.

From Wilmington, Tracy Spaniol finished in 240th place with a time of 32:23. Gerri Ballavia placed 303rd with a time of 33:43. Francesca Driscoll's time of 33:59 was good enough for 320th place. Paula George (49:48), Shelia Carter (59:44), Julia Carter (59:45) and Celia Cornish (60:08) also took part in the event.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Division 1 power

Fenwick tops Lady Rams

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA — The Shawsheen Tech softball team suffered just their second loss of the season on Monday afternoon dropping a 6-2 decision on the road to non-league rival Bishop Fenwick. It was the second loss of the season for the Lady Rams to Fenwick, who have handed them their only two defeats on the season, but coach Maureen Buckley felt that her team played much better in this contest than they had in their 8-1 loss the last time the teams squared off.

"We played well, but they also played well," Buckley said. "We were much better than the last time we played. We were very sound defensively and as the game went on we started to hit better, but they had one big inning that was really the difference."

Indeed it was one big inning that cost Shawsheen in this one, as Fenwick broke open a close 2-0 game with four runs in the sixth inning. While Shawsheen fought back with two runs in the top of the seventh they were unable to complete the comeback and they dropped to 10-2 overall on the season while they remain a perfect 8-0 in the CAC.

The game was scoreless for the first three innings as Shawsheen sophomore pitcher Emily Hamilton of Tewksbury was matching Fenwick star Taylor Ahern pitch for pitch. Fenwick finally broke through for single runs in the fourth and fifth before breaking the game open in the sixth. Overall on the day Hamilton allowed eight hits over six innings and kept her team in the game for much of the contest.

"Emily pitched well," Buckley said. "She did a very good job and held them to eight hits, but they placed them well and pieced them together in the sixth inning."

Shawsheen, however, was not able to piece anything together until their two run sixth. Buckley of course would have liked to have seen more offense from her team, but she was actually impressed with the way they began to get something going as the game wore on.

"Their pitcher had us pretty much baffled through the first few innings, but we adjusted well and our bats started to come alive," Buckley said. "We learned from the mistakes of our first at bats. We do not have the opportunity to face a pitcher like that very often so it was nice to see us adjust in our second and third at bats."

Despite the loss, this game actually raised Buckley's confidence in her team as the state tournament approaches. Fenwick, who is now 11-1 on the season, is one of the better teams in Division 3, and the Lady Rams certainly proved they have the ability to compete with them.

"Fenwick plays some of the best teams around in the Catholic Conference and they still have a great record," Buckley said. "That is exactly why we play these types of games and I think we showed we have the ability to play with quality teams like Fenwick."

Shawsheen scored their two runs in the sixth inning courtesy of three Tewksbury residents on an RBI double by Emily Knoops which scored Brooke Mallahan, and an RBI single by Meredith Bonugli that scored Knoops.

Buckley also made note of the great defensive efforts turned in by third baseman Kristina Lees of Wilmington and shortstop Danielle Cacciola of Tewksbury.

In the game prior to the Fenwick loss, the lady Rams rolled to a 7-1 win over CAC rival Greater Lawrence. In the season opener the Lady Rams had downed Greater Lawrence by a score of 28-4, and while Friday's game was much closer. Shawsheen was always in control, as they scored seven runs in the first two innings before cruising to victory.

"They have had a tough season. They are a team that has struggled a little," Buckley said. "But still it was good for us to get another league win."

pitched the first four innings for the Lady Rams to earn the win while Wilmington's Charlene Sullivan pitched well in the final three innings. Shawsheen was sparked offensively by Mallahan, who was 3-for-3 along with Franny Pesantes and Arianna Medeiros, each of whom went 2-for-2.

Girls Lacrosse

The Shawsheen Girls Lacrosse team has been steadily improving as the season has gone on, but they had not yet been able to translate that improved play into any victories. That all changed for the Lady Rams this past week, as they picked up not just one, but two victories on the week, picking up wins over Watertown at home on Saturday and on the road on Monday at Dracut to improve their record on the season to 2-4-1.

In the Dracut win, the Lady Rams had their season high total for goals in a 19-13 win that had first year coach Maggie Joyce singing their praises for an outstanding performance.

"It was so awesome," Joyce said. "We played so well and the girls worked so hard. It was a lot of fun for our kids. They totally deserved it, and that's what made it even more fun."

Shawsheen was led offensively by Marissa Irwin who had five goals along with Lindsey Gonsalves of Tewksbury who added four of her own. Sophomore Kelsey Farraher continued her fine play since joining the varsity with three goals, while senior Jess Houghton added a pair.

Shawsheen also got individual goals from Kim Barriss, Catie Vultaggio, Jill Canniff, Alyssa Post of Tewksbury and Rachel McLaren of Wilmington. It was Post's first ever varsity goal.

Joyce was pleased to see the balanced scoring from her squad, with nine different players finding the back of the net.

"That was huge for us today and in the Watertown game as well," Joyce said. "It tells me that we do not only have one shooter or one scorer, but that they all can do it. It was really great to see."

Katie Fulton made seven saves to earn the win for Shawsheen, while Jose Sullivan-Taylor of Tewksbury added three saves in relief of Fulton.

Beyond just the win, Joyce was even happier with the way her team executed throughout the game. "We ran a lot of plays and we executed well," Joyce said. "We even put in a play during a timeout and it worked for a couple of goals for us. This was really great for the team."

The 13-8 win over Watertown was the first game the Lady Rams had played together since members of the junior varsity team joined the varsity after the JV team was forced to cancel their season. Joyce was pleased with the way her team came together so quickly to pick up what at the time was their first win of the season.

"I feel like that makes it even more impressive because they had not played together as a team at all," Joyce said. "A win like that allows them to have confidence that they can do well together."

And getting that first win out of the way was obviously huge for the Lady Rams at that time.

"They were obviously very happy, but mostly thought it felt like they had worked well as a team and meshed well," Joyce said. "It was nice for them to be rewarded with a win."

Shawsheen got three goals from Jess Houghton and two each from Barriss and Vultaggio. Molly Hentz, Marissa Irwin, Jill Caniff, Erin Elliot, Kaitlyn Gordon of Tewksbury and Rachel McLaren each added single goals for the Lady Rams.

Gordon had been with the varsity team last year, but began this season with the JV until the teams merged. Gordon has played very well in her return to the top team and Joyce is looking forward to seeing her get even better as the year goes on.

"I am definitely looking forward to having her with the varsity for the rest of the season," Joyce said. "There is so much potential in her. She is athletic and has good game sense. She will only get better."

Co-Ed Tennis

The Shawsheen co-ed tennis team suffered a couple of tough losses this past week to CAC rival Minuteman in a double-header on Monday afternoon, but with their 4-3 record they are still in contention for the CAC title.

Shawsheen lost by scores of 4-3 and 5-2 in the double-header, but got some outstanding efforts in the matches they won and even some where they fell a little short.

"We were able to beat them the first time we played them this year, but they have a lot of talent, especially in singles and we couldn't get the win even though we played well," Shawsheen coach J.P. Boriello said.

Shawsheen's doubles teams played very well in the loss, as they swept the doubles matches in their 4-3 loss led by the outstanding play of the sophomore combination Jenna Spinosa and Taylor Simas, who won their third singles match by a score of 10-0. The reigning CAC girls doubles team won by an identical score in the second match of the doubleheader.

"They are doing really well," Boriello said. "I think they could be doubles champs again. It is really nice to have them, especially since they are both just sophomores."

The first doubles team of Mandy Filliolo and John Goempel also won both of their matches on the day, taking their first match by a score of 10-3 and following that up with a 10-6 win in their second match.

"Mandy and John have been teaming up off and on and they have been working well together," Boriello said. "We could end up using them as our mixed doubles team in the league championships."

Marc Weber earned the Rams lone singles win with a 10-7 victory in second singles in the first match of the day. Joe Villeneuve and Mario Merino were not able to get wins in their singles matches, but each actually played well, with Villeneuve losing one of his matches by a score of 11-9, while Merino dropped a 10-6 decision in one of his matches.

"I thought we played pretty well despite losing and those singles matches were a pretty good example of that," Boriello said. "Those guys played really well."

Despite the losses, the Rams can still challenge for the league crown, as Greater Lowell has two losses and Minuteman has one. The Rams play Greater Lowell two more times, and Minuteman one more time. If they are able to beat Minuteman and Greater Lowell, and get a little help with Greater Lowell beating Minuteman they can still take home the title.

"We will need some help, but if we keep playing well and can pick up some wins we still have a chance," Boriello said. "All we can do is give it our best and win the matches we can."

McDougall touched so many lives

Wilmington and about having kids reach their potential," Fay said. "He was a great asset to the youth leagues. I know he would love to see how we have progressed. As a high school coach I can see how our youth program has helped our high school program and I know Scotty would be very proud of that."

McDougall's wife Sheila, along with his son Dan has helped to carry on his tradition of helping the young people of Wilmington. When the scholarships were initially established last year by WYLA they were set to be in the amount of $500 each, but Sheila and Dan stepped up and matched those amounts to make them for $1,000 each and that is the amount they will continue to be going forward.

Sheila is proud of all her husband accomplished and the lives that he touched and also takes great pride in seeing how the program has carried on in his absence.

"He would be extremely proud of hat has happened to the program," Sheila said. "And I am so proud of the people in the organization and how hard they continue to work to make it successful. It is definitely one of the best organizations in town. The commitment of these people is amazing. It is such a great program. Everything that my husband had hoped would happen has come to fruition."

While McDougall coached, mentored and refereed too many kids to count over the years, perhaps his best coaching job ever began in his own backyard. McDougall was a great athlete in high school and college starring as a three sport varsity athlete at Medford High before going on to Boston State College where he earned All New England honors in lacrosse, and he passed those attributes on to his son Dan, who may very well be the best player ever to come out of the WYLA program.

Dan, a junior at Avon Old Farms School in Connecticut will continue his lacrosse career in college as he has been awarded a full athletic scholarship to Division 1 Marist College in New York. The younger McDougall also stars for the Avon Old Farms hockey team and he knows his dad played a huge role in his success.

"My dad helped me get to where I am now. He was always my baseball coach and my hockey coach and reffed for all the other sports. He was so great for me and great for all the kids in Wilmington," Dan said.

Dan, like many others in Wilmington, had never played lacrosse before getting started in the youth lacrosse program, but with his father's assistance it soon became apparent that he could not only play the game, but that he could dominate at it.

"I guess I was a pretty good athlete, and I think that was because my dad would always help me," Dan said. "I loved lacrosse from the start, but I also loved baseball, so I had to choose between the two. My dad always supported me in what I wanted to do."

As it turns out, it would appear that Dan definitely made the right choice as his abilities caught the eye of the coach at Marist and led to him receiving the offer to attend the school. It is a time in his life that he will never forget and he knows his father would have lobed to be part of it.

"When Marist called to ask me to come for a visit it was just amazing and getting the offer to attend there was just incredible. I just loved it right from the start and I am really looking forward to going there," Dan said. "When I got the offer I just thought of how proud and excited my dad would be. He was such a big part of this for me."

Scott McDougall of course, was a huge part of many lives in Wilmington, which is why it is not surprise that the response to the June 17 fundraiser has been so amazing. At least 200 tickets have been sold already as there are so many people in town who want to show their appreciation for all that McDougall did for them.

Leighton says that the response so far to the fund raiser is a great indication of what McDougall meant to the town of Wilmington.

"He just did so much for so many people," Leighton said. "I know that personally having not really been involved in youth sports until about eight years ago I learned so much from him. And there are so many people like that who have learned so much from Scotty, whether it was how to play or the best way to coach. He was just an amazing person."

And Sheila has been overwhelmed by the number of people who want to honor her husband with the scholarship and the fund raiser.

"It is just incredible," she said as her emotions overtook her. "My husband was just a wonderful man and he was so involved in helping so many kids at all age levels. It is so nice to see so many people who want to do something to help and to get involved."

For anyone who would like to purchase tickets for what should be a very special evening on the night of the fundraiser, or if you would simply like to make a donation to the Scotty McDougall Memorial Scholarship, please contact either Sheila or her brother Jim Hachey. Sheila can be reached by phone at 978-569-0828 or by email at shemcd@comcast.net, and

Jim can be reached by phone at 617-839-9500 or by email at jhachey@inbuildingcellular.com

The fundraiser promises to be a wonderful evening for all. The "Scotty" as the event has been dubbed will be held at Montville Plaza, 54 Montvale Ave in Stoneham from 7:00 pm to 11:00 pm on Friday, June 17. The Master of Ceremonies for the evening will be Hank Morse of WROR 105.7, and the evening will include a buffet dinner, music, dancing an auction and raffles. Most importantly, this year's scholarship recipients will be announced. Tickets are $40 and must be purchased in advance.

Mike Fay may have done the best job of summing up what the fundraiser means to him and others who knew and loved Scotty McDougall.

"Scotty was such a giving and caring guy," Fay said. "He had more friends than you can even imagine. He is a guy you always wished the best for and it was a heart-breaker to see him go so young."

"Death is hard, but at some point you do want to celebrate the life that a person had, and Scotty's life is certainly worth celebrating."

and he doesn't even know who these people are," added O'Mahony. "She was just such a presence in town, so were hoping at the very least he'll see the continued support that we have for Kim and see all the people that she touched in one way or another."

Family and friends should have no problem recognizing that this Sunday, as nearly 400 people have already registered for the event.

Bryan anticipated those numbers to generate over $5,000 in funds raised. Since WOW is a non-profit organization, all proceeds will go directly back to the community. The money will go back in the form of scholarships, as well as to support WOW programs such as their clothing pantry, the Sponsor a Child program, and also to promote more service projects in the schools.

Bryan said that Forte would have undoubtedly approved of their efforts, as these types of charitable engagements are something she would have loved to be involved with.

to runners and walkers of all ages and athletic abilities. Participants can register as an individual, or a join one of the many teams that are giving back to their local organizations through donations and fund raising.

O'Mahony said that the WOW had original intentions of organizing the race to support local organizations, but are hopeful that that portion of the event will grow in years to come.

"Our initial goal for this year was to kind of get the word out about our organization and the purpose behind the run was really to try to support other non-profits in town to have them get teams together and they could do fundraising," she said.

"We were basically offering to plan a fundraiser that they would just then need to participate in and do their own kind of fundraising, but they wouldn't have to do any of the planning part for the race. That part of it didn't grow as much as we wanted, but we think that in years to come that is going to become a bigger component."

This Sunday morning the Town of Wilmington will host a Kim Forte Memorial Road Race/Walk event in honor of Forte, who tragically passed away in the winter. (courtesy photo).

"[Kim's husband], Lou said that this is something she would have fully embraced," Bryan said. "It's basically right up Kim's alley. She's just a giving person, and in Wilmington, she raised her family here and this is something that she really would have enjoyed doing."

The 5K run and walk is a professionally timed event that will begin at 10:00 Sunday morning. Registration is now $30, cash only. Non-registered children of all ages are welcome to walk accompanied by a registered adult. The race is open

But this Sunday, all focus will be on celebrating the life of such a caring member of the community.

"The overall focus of it is the community and giving back to the community, and it just fit nicely with Kim and what she believed and it was just a great way for us to kind of bring both of them together," said Bryan.

"I'm very excited about the response and we have well exceeded what we thought we were going to do, so it's going to be great."

POW and North Reading resident helps tell the story of POWs

By PAUL FEELY

It's a story that has taken over 60 years to tell, but is well worth the wait.

"It started 66 years ago, when 39 men who were in prison camps decided to write something down," said North Reading resident James 'Jimmy' Arsenault. "Time passed, and years went by. In the '70s we started to get together again, and they started to send me what they had written, clippings and journal entries. Every now and then I would look at the pile of stuff and say 'I've got to do something with this,' but last year it really got started."

Arsenault, with the help of fellow North Readingite Nancy Parsons, turned that pile into a new book, entitled Brothers of War: The POW Experience - The Collected Memoirs of 39 'Brothers', which was published just last month by local firm The Cheshire Press, also based in North Reading.

"On May 4, 66 years ago I was liberated from prison," said Arsenault, age 87. "Then on May 5, one year later, I was married. I always say I got out of one prison then went into another."

In March, 1944, Arsenault was one of 39 prisoners of war to be marched into a German work camp - Burzen Kommando 1637 - in what is now Poland. For the next year and a half, these POWs lived together, took care of each other and supported one another even when they were marched out of camp and sent on a five-hundred-mile march across Germany in the winter of 1945.

During their shared experiences, they became like brothers, and all thirty-nine survived to see liberation in May 1945. While still prisoners at Burzen Kommando 1637, they agreed to write a memoir to which each man would contribute.

"We went through everything you can imagine, but we all survived, with the help of each other," said Arsenault, whose brother Walter was the original operator of Harrow's Restaurant on Main Street in Reading. "We had guys carry one another, get each other food. You had some freedom, work details, but the SS made it very clear that if one walked away, two would be shot. We ended up walking for 40 days, 500 miles, and some couldn't make it on their own, but we all made it by helping each other. All 39 made it to the end."

The collective memoir begins with the captures in Italy where all the men were seeing action at Monte Casino, the disastrous Battle of the Rapido River or the Anzio beachhead. It describes the rail trip north to the Stalags on the Baltic Sea and ultimately to the work camp.

"It's quite a story," said Arsenault. "It's not a combat tale - everyone has their own story, but it's 39 men living together for 16 months in a prison camp, and the things that went on there. Not everything, because there's some things we can't tell. All these stories have been put together now in book form."

It details the forced winter march and - finally - the liberation by the Russian forces. The memoir also shares how post-war reunions were able to bring peace and healing to many of the brothers, and it offers some reasons why and how all thirty-nine were able to survive the POW ordeals.

"I think it's a story of survival," said Parsons, who helped Arsenault put the book together. "You helped each other survive, and you all survived."

"They did come home, but we had a lot of problems," said Arsenault. "Three of them committed suicide, and a few we tried to contact years

War to S-4

JIMMY ARSENAULT OF READING AND NORTH READING recently compiled this memoir of his, and other POW's stories of being captured during WWII. Arsenault was captured in Italy during WWII. The prisoner of war medal (pictured above) is a bronze medal, 1 3/8 inches in diameter, includes an eagle with wings opened surrounded by a circle of barbed wire and bayonet points. The reverse has the inscription "AWARDED TO" around the top and "FOR HONORABLE SERVICE WHILE A PRISONER OF WAR" across the center in three lines with a space between the two inscriptions for engraving the name of the recipient. The shield of the Coat of Arms of the United States is centered on the lower part of the reverse side with the inscription "UNITED STATES OF AMERICA" around the bottom of the medal.

"THOR" A BLAST TO WATCH

"THOR" IS THE LATEST INSTALLMENT of the Marvel comic heroes to hit the screen. Chris Hemsworth stars as Thor, a powerful but arrogant warrior who is banished to earth. Natalie Portman is portrays a scientist who is studying him. The movie is slickly directed, well acted and a great summer action movie.

"THOR" GRADE: ***

This latest installment of Marvel comic heroes to hit the screen is a movie that offers everything you could want in a summer action movie.

The epic adventure 'Thor' spans the Marvel Universe from present day Earth to the mystical realm of Asgard. At the center of the story is the mighty Thor, a powerful but arrogant warrior whose reckless actions reignite an ancient war.

As a result, Thor is banished to Earth where he is forced to live among humans. When the most dangerous villain of his world sends its darkest forces to invade Earth, Thor learns what it takes to be a true hero.

The movie version of the comic book character, doesn't engage in the soul-searching that often goes along with heroes in today's super hero movies. It doesn't feel like a comedy, but director Kenneth Branagh gives it a comedic smirk that starts with Thor himself, played by charismatic Chris Hemsworth as a man who thinks it's funny how easily he can get rid of evil doers, and has fun doing it.

Thor's main foe is his brother, Loki (Tom Hiddleston), who feels inferior to Thor in the eyes of their father (dad is Anthony Hopkins as Odin). Their battle brings them to Earth, where they catch the eye of the government, led by Clark Gregg's witty fed. Thor is also studied by three scientists (Natalie Portman, Stellan Skarsgard, Kat Dennings) who befriend the man with the muscles after he arrives on earth.

The actors don't have a lot of time on the big screen, but they make the most of it. Portman is good with the lines she is given to deliver (however uninspiring some may be), Dennings is amusing as the film's jokester and Skarsgard's seriousness plays well between the two women.

smile off his face, perfect casting for a god enjoying playing with the mere mortals.

It's slickly directed, sharply written (with a surprising dose of humor injected) well acted by a fresh young cast, and a total blast to watch.

"FAST FIVE" GRADE: ***

You might think this series would have run out of gas by now, but instead it's picking up speed again.

Vin Diesel and Paul Walker lead a reunion of returning all-stars from every chapter of the explosive franchise built on speed in Fast Five.

In this installment, former cop Brian O'Conner (Paul Walker) partners with ex-con Dom Toretto (Vin Diesel) on the opposite side of the law. Dwayne Johnson joins returning favorites Jordana Brewster, Tyrese Gibson, Chris "Ludacris" Bridges, Matt Schulze, Sung Kang, Gal Gadot, Tego Calderon and Don Omar for this ultimate high-stakes race.

Since Brian and Mia Toretto (Brewster) broke Dom out of custody, they've blown across many borders to elude authorities. Now backed into a corner in Rio de Janeiro, they must pull one last job in order to gain their freedom.

As they assemble their elite team of top racers, the unlikely allies know their only shot of getting out for good means confronting the corrupt businessman who wants them dead. But he's not the only one on their tail.

Hard-nosed federal agent Luke Hobbs (Johnson) never misses his target. When he is assigned to track down Dom and Brian, he and his strike team launch an all-out assault to capture them. But as his men tear through Brazil, Hobbs learns he can't separate the good guys from the bad. Now, he must rely on his instincts to corner his prey...before someone else runs them down first.

They've really upped the ante in this, the fifth installment in the franchise, delivering enough to both satisfy and surprise longtime fans.

There's you would expect, like the fast driving, jaw-dropping action, some unexpected twists and a heist central to the plot with an extraordinary climactic sequence you'll shake your head about.

Directed by Justin Lin, who also directed the last two films, the filmmakers have kept true to the essence of the characters and the childlike sense of fun they have always shared. When all the megabuck stunts are stripped away, it's still about family, the camaraderie and competitive spirit between Vin Diesel's ex-criminal Dom and Paul Walker's ex-cop Brian.

It's a stroke of inspiration to have Dwayne Johnson as the head of the elite task force. This is seriously fast and furious action that doesn't rely on CGI to get you to enjoy the thrills.

"HANNA" GRADE: ***

Action sequences save this film, which often finds itself teetering on the edge of absurdity.

The plot goes like this: A teenage girl goes out into the world for the first time, and is forced to battle for her life. Talk about the perils of leaving home.

Director Joe Wright weaves elements of dark fairy tales into the adventure thriller Hanna, filmed on location in Europe and Morocco. Hanna (played by Academy Award nominee Saoirse Ronan of Atonement, also directed by Wright) is 16 years old. She is bright, inquisitive, and a devoted daughter.

Uniquely, she has the strength, the stamina, and the smarts of a soldier; these come from being raised by her widowed father Erik (Eric Bana), an ex-CIA man, in the wilds of North Finland.

In the first moments of Hanna, the audience realizes this is unlike any father-daughter relationship they have ever seen before. Erik sneaks up on Hanna and throws her to the ground. She leaps up and starts pounding him senseless.

Those scenes are weird enough, but they don't accurately capture the overall strangeness of the film.

The strength of the film is not the plot, but instead the constant gunfights, assassinations, chases and brawls.

WOODS WORKING IN READING

"The Board of Selectmen has gone along with a request from the developer of Reading Woods, at the site of the former Addison Wesley headquarters off South Street, to designate a consultant as Administering Agent/Affordable Housing Monitoring Agent for the project," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"In accordance with Zoning By-Law Section 4.11.10.7.1 and Condition #4 of the CPDC Site Plan Approval issued for Reading Woods, representatives from Pulte Homes recently requested that the Board of Selectmen formally designate and approve JWO Consultant Services, Ms. Jill W. Onderdonk as Administering Agent/Affordable Housing Monitoring Agent.

"Pulte representatives stated that the Reading Housing Authority (RHA) was contacted about acting as the Administering Agent/Affordable Housing Monitoring Agent, but that it was their understanding is that RHA personnel were unable to accept the appointment given the size of the project and limited resources.

"Pulte Homes Vice President Reid Blute told the Selectmen that 'Jill Onderdonk and her firm JWO Consultant Services is a highly qualified entity with considerable affordable housing experience and is well versed in DHCD regulations and requirements. Once appointed, the Monitoring Agent will monitor and enforce compliance with the affordable housing provisions of the Town's Zoning Bylaw which DHD approved pursuant to chapter 40R. Jill Onderdonk and JWO Consultant Services is a highly regarded affordable housing entity with DHCD.'

"In accordance with DHCD regulations, the costs of the Monitoring Agent will be borne by Pulte Homes.

"The Selectmen approved designating Jill Onderdonk as Administering Agent/Affordable Housing Monitoring Agent for the Reading Woods project with a 5-0 vote."

GARDEN MAGIC IN TEWKSBURY

"Members of TIPPAC (Tewksbury Integrated Preschool Parent Advisory Council) and their children voluntarily came in to school during April vacation to give the hallways a fresh coat of paint and transform it into a Magical Garden for the teachers and kids to enjoy when they returned. All paint and supplies were generously donated by Tewksbury Paint & Hardware," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"The hallway is now a cheerful blue and green, with many outdoor and educational themes, applied by many parent volunteers including Sara Cohen, Shelley DeGrechie, Kerry Gibson, Amy Hatch, Danny Martin, Jen Shpritzer, Marty Engel, Shannon Engel, Sue Stadtman and headed up by Kelley Dunham; a mother of triplets currently attending their last year in the program. 'This was something I wanted to do to give back to the preschool that each of my four children has attended over the past four-and-a-half years, and it's been a great experience for the kids to get involved and see the positive difference we all can make,' said Dunham.

"Sara Cohen, President of the newly formed TIPPAC, is thrilled with the outcome and how parents and students have been coming together to raise funds and volunteer their time for recent improvements to the playground, hallways, and classrooms during a challenging economic time for the schools. 'It's wonderful to see parents, especially those of children with special needs, find time to make a difference at the preschool, where the students and teachers for years to come will really benefit!' said Cohen."

Upcoming events sponsored by TIPPAC are: Thursday, May 19, at 7:00-8:00 p.m. in the Center School: 'Summertime Activities for Preschoolers' presented by Gail Bliss, an OT in the Tewksbury Public School system and Saturday, May 21, from 2:00-4:00 p.m.: Free Ice Cream Social featuring a musician for all current and future preschoolers.

HOT STUFF

IN STONEHAM

Five Guys Burgers and Fries will be opening any time now at the Redstone Shopping Plaza; and Sal's Pizza chain will be soon moving into Stoneham at the old Pearle Vision store on Main Street.

Also on the menu: "Selectman John DePinto ... warned the general public that several con artists have attempted to swindle money from residents by pretending to be from a local organization that sends care packages to troops overseas," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"According to DePinto, he had recently received correspondence from HOT (Help our Troops) representatives warning that several Stonehamites had been asked to write out checks to private individuals on behalf of the charity group.

"The Selectman later advised residents to contact HOT officials directly before writing out a check, or to go to StonehamBank, which will receive donations on behalf of the group ..."

I've lost 20 lbs... no more flabby arms!

BEFORE

I have been a member of GISFW for over a year and have lost almost 20 pounds. More importantly, I see changes in my body that are amazing. Increased strength and muscle definition are the biggest changes. No more flabby arms! I now have flatter abs and thinner, stronger thighs. I feel wonderful! The trainers are the best and I can't thank them enough for their support and challenges. They are constantly pushing me to do more. They are genuinely interested in my success and they hold me accountable. GISFW is a wonderful environment to workout in.

Thanks GISFW!

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

What teams played in the first all-California Super Bowl?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Senior William Nguidjoi (Lawrence, Mass.) won the triple jump and eclipsed a 33-year-old school record to lead the UMass Lowell men's track and field team at the Stonehill Skyhawk Invitational at W.B. Mason Stadium.

UMass Lowell compiled 89 points and placed fourth as the host Skyhawks won the team title with 148.5 points. Northeastern placed second with 128.5 points while Boston University took third with 92 points.

Nguidjoi led three UMass Lowell individuals and the 4X400 relay team which won titles on the day while five athletes and the 4X400 team emerged tops in the Division II and III field.

Wundt and Regan also ran legs on UMass Lowell's 4X400 meter relay team which placed first in 3:20.68. Freshman Casey O'Brien (Seekonk, Mass.) led off with a 50.8-second split and was followed by Regan in 49.8 seconds, freshman Keith Lewis (Nashua, N.H.) in 49.6 and Wundt the anchor in 50.0.

Lewis also captured an individual title, winning the 400 meter hurdles in 53.96 seconds and leading three UMass Lowell hurdlers in the top seven places. FRESHMAN CAMERON MITCHELL (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) placed sixth overall (third among Division II-III athletes) in 56.72 seconds and freshman Vladimir Francois (North Attleboro, Mass.) seventh (fourth) in 56.77.

Lewis placed sixth in the high jump (6' 2.0") while Regan and O'Brien did well in the 200 meters, Regan in fourth (22.49) and O'Brien in eighth (22.88). Mitchell also placed fourth in the 110 meter high hurdles in 15.38 seconds.

Mitchell and Francois each ran splits on UMass Lowell's 4X100 meter relay team, which took fifth in 43.59 seconds. Joining them were FRESHMEN RYAN PERKINS (LYNNFIELD, MASS.) and Jeremy Cwieka (Chicopee, Mass.).

•Junior Ashley Zielinski (Manchester, N.H.) won both the 100 and 400 meter hurdles to lead the UMass Lowell women's track and field team at the Stonehill Skyhawk Invitational at W.B. Mason Stadium.

UMass Lowell compiled 65 points and placed fourth in the 10-team field. The University of Rhode Island won the team title with 212 points while the host Skyhawks placed second (108), Northeastern third (97) and Boston University fourth (79).

Six River Hawks emerged among the top Division II and III entries in their events.

Other notable results included that of freshman Janelle Clarkson (Seekonk, Mass.), who placed third (second) in the high jump, clearing 5' 2.5"; SOPHOMORE NICOLE SKOTZ (TEWKSBURY, MASS.), who took seventh (second) in the 5,000 meters in 19:34.03; and FRESHMAN KARIE JUDGE (TEWKSBURY, MASS.) who finished seventh (third) in the 800 meters in 2:20.30.

•Fifth-seeded UMass Lowell defeated eighth-seeded Southern New Hampshire 3-1 in the first round of the 2011 Northeast-10 Conference Softball Tournament. Senior P Rachel Schaffer (Floral Park, N.Y.) threw a three-hitter, earning her 13th win of the year. The win was UMass Lowell's 13th straight.

With the victory, UMass Lowell (34-18) advanced to the double-elimination portion of the tournament.

Southern New Hampshire struck first on a solo home run by Melissa Vitagliano in the top of the second inning, going up 1-0 early on. The ball, hit to left field, was nearly caught on a valiant, over-the-fence effort by junior Caelyn Ford (Dracut, Mass.).

The River Hawks answered back with three consecutive singles to start the bottom of the second, loading the bases for CF Ashley Daniels (Medford, Mass.). She walked, scoring SOPHOMORE RE KATIE MAZURE (BURLINGTON, MASS.), tying the game at one apiece. The Penmen defense held strong through the rest of inning, stranding three River Hawk runners.

•Need some help with the trivia question? Oakland is not one of them.

•The Merrimack women's tennis team suffered a 5-1 loss to Adelphi in the Northeast-10 Conference Quarterfinals. The sixth-seeded Warriors finish the season with an 8-10 overall record after posting an 8-5 mark in the league this season. The No. 3 Panthers improve to 18-3 on the year and advance to the Northeast-10 Conference semifinals.

Adelphi claimed two doubles victories to take a 2-1 lead at the start of singles play. Merrimack's all-conference duo of Kara Hole (Portsmouth, R.I.) and Mollie Fitzgerald (Melrose, Mass.) prevailed 8-4 at the No. 2 doubles position.

The Panthers earned three singles wins to capture the 5-1 victory, halting the match. Alyx Barnes (Portsmouth, N.H.), the Northeast-10 Conference Rookie of the Year, fell 6-0, 7-5 at the No. 3 slot to Adelphi's Carolyn Smith.

The home team's top two singles players, All-Conference second-team selections, Alda Ribeiro and Maria Toft, secured the win for the Panthers. Toft defeated Hole 6-0, 6-0 at the No. 1 position. Ribeiro topped COURTNEY GARVEY (WOBURN, MASS.) 6-0, 6-3 at the second singles match.

War

ago and they said it was a part of their lives that they didn't want to go into."

In seeking publishing help, Jimmy Arsenault turned to his community.

"I put an article in the Transcript, saying I had all these stories and would like help putting it all together, because I don't know how to do all that," said Arsenault. "And Nancy answered that ad."

"Jimmy had indicated in his letter in the Transcript that he had a lot of material, and indeed he did," said Parsons. "And when I started to go through the material, I was very surprised and very pleased that it was good. Two of the men, and Jimmy, wrote rather extensively, and then two of the men had smaller parts, but those three were well written."

"So then what I did was organize it so that all the captures were in a section, life on the march was all in a section...the individual writers keep showing up as part of each of the section," continued Parsons. "That's the way we handled it. Then I did an introduction, but I also wanted to make some comments on why the men survived, so at the very end there's a chapter on the reunions, getting the guys to talk again, then pulled examples out of their own writings to substantiate their survival."

Publishing expenses were realized through a grant by The Reading Cultural Council and from a generous gift from VFW Post#. "James Arsenault is a proud member of the North Reading VFW Post #10874."

The Friends of the North Reading Council on Aging, Inc. is also a strong sponsor of the book and the organization has established a fund - BROTHERS OF WAR - to handle bookkeeping tasks, sales of the book and donations. Friends of the N.R. OA will see that profits from the sales of the book will be used for senior citizen and veterans projects in the community.

Arsenault, a Reading native, is a longtime resident of North Reading. As a local businessman, he owned and operated Pinewood Gardens for many years. He has many memories of the local area.

"When I was inducted into the service, the buses used to run into Reading and Wakefield squares, but they didn't run until after 7 a.m.," said Arsenault. "We had to report before that. My mother and my sister walked me to Wakefield Depot, because that's where we needed to report to the service. Then they walked back. But Reading was my hometown. I was born here."

At age eighty-seven, Jimmy finds himself a first-time author and a speaker much in demand.

He has appeared at the Friends of the N.R. COA and at a joint meeting of the Reading-North Reading Rotaries, and he looks forward to being at a May 15 Veterans' Social, an author's event at the library, a filmed interview by NORCAM and especially at his own book signing party on Memorial Day.

In the book's acknowledgement section, there are details that show how the communities of Reading and North Reading stepped up to help make Jimmy's dream a reality.

"Asked to help with funding, Mary Prenney, Director of North Reading Elder Affairs, said an instant 'yes,'" states the acknowledgements. "Following Mary's lead, The Friends of the North Reading Council on Aging, Inc. lent their sponsorship to the project so grants seeking funding could be written and bills could be paid. With efficiency and good humor, Tom DeSwarte, treasurer of N.R. Friends of the COA, took on the task of managing the book fund.

"As he listened to the publishing needs of 'Brothers of War', John Murphy, North Reading Town Moderator, President of the Reading/North Reading Chamber of Commerce, and Sr. Vice President and Director of Business Development of Reading Co-Operative Bank, nodded, smiled and delved into his amazing network of people - folks who might provide support. John talked up the book throughout several towns and worked with Tom DeSwarte to set up the BROTHERS OF WAR fund."

"The Reading Cultural Council responded to our funding appeal with a handsome grant. Then North Reading's VFW Post 10874 set spirits sailing with a generous gift that covered two-thirds of the publishing costs."

Arsenault said the book has been well-received by readers thus far.

"We've got so many of the families, the daughters and sons, who are so enthused about this book," said Arsenault. "My daughter hears from some of them everyday. You would think they had been friends for a lifetime. They want to hear stories about family members who have been gone for years. I'm glad now, when I hear from the other families, that we did this. It took a long time, but it's a good story."

5 ways to squash stress

Just about everyone at some point in time has experienced stress. Some suffer from stress powerful enough to have profound effects on daily life and personal health. A variety of strategies, from medication to meditation, can be effective at relieving stress.

Stress is not something easily defined. That's because what is stressful to one person may roll off of another's back. Various situations can trigger emotional responses in people. Very often these responses can escalate into stress that affects blood pressure, anxiety levels, mood, sleep patterns, and eating habits.

The American Institute of Stress lists 50 different common signs and symptoms of stress. A few of those symptoms include:

- * frequent headaches
- * grinding teeth
- * neck ache
- * back pain
- * heartburn
- * obsessive behavior
- * overreaction to small annoyances
- * increased anger or frustration
- * rapid or mumbled speech
- * social withdrawal
- * excessive gambling or impulse buying
- * chest pain and palpitations
- * excessive anxiety or worry

Stress can have distinct effects on health. There are a number of physical disorders and emotional effects that have been linked to stress. Heart attacks, hypertension, immune system disorders, anxiety, and depression have all been linked to excessive stress.

Reducing stress has become a priority for many people looking to avoid health problems. There are many strategies people can take. Here's a look at five of them.

1. Progressive muscle relaxation (PMR): A person starts from the face and works down the body by tensing all of the muscles in specific areas while inhaling and holding breath. Then he or she relaxes the muscles while exhaling.

2. Guided imagery: With the help of a recording or one's own imagination, a person pictures a relaxing scene with a possible guide answering profound questions.

3. Laughter: Laughing reduces the level of stress hormones, like epinephrine, dopamine, cortisol and others. It also increases endorphins. Laughter is a good distraction and also a mild workout. It contracts the abdominal muscles and works out the shoulders.

4. Music: Music can be used in many ways to reduce stress. Soft, peaceful music may help induce meditation and imagery. Upbeat music can get a person dancing, where the physical activity loosens muscles and relieves stress.

5. Sex: Sex can boost mood, reduce blood pressure, promote relaxation through touch and provide a physical workout. All of these factors are good for reducing stress.

Hobbies for arthritis sufferers

Individuals with arthritis are often stuck between a rock and a hard place. Doctors want people to exercise to keep up the range of motion in affected joints. However, even some limited movements can cause pain and suffering to those with arthritis. Furthermore, individuals with arthritis may shy away from the activities they once enjoyed because the pain is simply too overwhelming.

Instead of simply sitting on the couch watching television, there are a number of different things arthritis sufferers can do to pass the time and reconnect with past hobbies and interests. It might just take a little re-outfitting of the tools that are needed to participate.

Gardening

Gardening is a popular pastime for people of all ages. But the repetitive motions of digging and tilling as well as gripping a multitude of tools can take the joy out of the hobby. People with arthritis can make some changes. Raised garden beds or container gardening eliminates the stooping and bending associated with traditional gardening. With containers, individuals can place the containers on a counter or table and do all the work at a comfortable height.

Choosing low-maintenance plants is another option. Plants that don't require as much pruning or repotting are good for those with arthritis. Also, look for tools with larger grips and handles to be easier on arthritic hands.

Crafting

Many people with arthritis find the fine-detail work they grew accustomed to is not very comfortable with arthritis. Instead, there are many other crafts that can be practical.

Ceramics are one craft where the activity can also be the exercise. Using a pottery wheel or hand-molding doughs and other modeling media can be a way to stretch and work the hands and fingers. Using paintbrushes equipped with wider grips can make painting possible.

Mural painting is another option. Again, those with arthritis can choose tools with wide handles to make grasping easier. Large designs on walls or canvases will be easier to handle than smaller pieces.

Cooking

Cooking and baking is an art form that can be enjoyed by anyone. Furthermore, with ergonomic spoons, ladles and other kitchen tools, it has never been more convenient or less labor-intensive to be an accomplished home chef.

Baking and pastry creation is one area where people can show off creative skills. For those who love to bake but have trouble kneading and working dough, food processors, bread machines and kitchen stand mixers can take the work out of those processes.

Cooking is not only a rewarding hobby but also an activity that can benefit the household.

Having arthritis doesn't mean a person has to give up on the activities he or she enjoys. It merely involves a few tweaks that can still make these hobbies enjoyable.

Foods that improve your looks

If we are what we eat, then it may be a good idea to take inventory of the foods the average person consumes on a daily basis. Although some foods are sought after for their taste, there are many foods that can be enjoyed because they have a positive effect on a person's appearance.

In the simplest sense, eating a healthy diet can help maintain a good body weight, which is one way to improve individual appearance. But more specifically, there are certain foods that have particular benefits for the skin, hair and body. The key is knowing what to eat.

Soy: Soy is rich in amino acids. This food, whether eaten as a soy bean or in the many foods made from soy, including tofu, can help the skin retain moisture and improve elasticity. Soy is also protein-rich, which can help a person feel full longer and avoid overeating.

Blueberries and cherries: These fruits are chock full of antioxidants, which studies show can reduce inflammation, a culprit of puffy, aging skin. Cherries are also a natural source of melatonin, which can help a person get a restful night's sleep — another component of looking your best.

Fresh herbs: Seasoning food with flavorful herbs instead of salt is another way to improve looks. Salt is often a culprit in water retention, which can lead to bloating and puffiness. This is also advantageous to people who need to reduce salt intake thanks to high blood pressure or other ailments.

Lime, pear, apple, and strawberry: These power fruits are high in vitamin C and other nutrients, making them an important component of a healthy diet. Furthermore, some research has suggested that certain foods, including limes, pears and apples, can whiten teeth.

Egg products: Eggs are high in vitamin A, which helps repair skin. Not getting enough vitamin A may contribute to wrinkles.

Milk products: Consuming low- or nonfat dairy products helps promote strong bones and teeth. Nothing says beautiful more than a big, bright smile. B vitamins in dairy also help with red blood cell growth, cells that are responsible for bringing oxygen to other cells. This can promote healthy, young-looking skin.

Yogurt: Yogurt contains beneficial bacteria, which help with digestion. This can help cleanse out the system and prevent toxins from backing up in the body.

Water: Of course a person needs to stay hydrated, and water can flush the body of excess salt and toxins while also plumping the skin.

There are many nutritionally sound foods that can boost outward appearance as well.

Spring Garden Time is here

Few things are anticipated more in spring than the arrival of new leaves on the trees and budding flowers in the garden. A landscape awash with fresh colors can brighten the spirit and make anyone want to head outdoors.

There are many different plants that begin to show their colors in the spring. A number of perennials, annuals and trees begin to flower or show new sprouts come the springtime. Here are some plants that can be planted for springtime enjoyment.

Annuals

Looking for first signs of color? Look no further than these wonderful annuals.

* Alyssum: Starting in April, this cascading bounty of tiny flowers offers a sweet aroma that attracts butterflies.

* Dianthus: These vivid flowers also attract butterflies and are often a cottage garden staple.

* Gypsophila: Also known as baby's breath, these delicate flowers can serve as filler in any landscape. Pink and white varieties are available.

* Impatiens: One of the best-known plants for the garden, these annuals come in scores of colors and can generally tolerate full sun to full shade.

* Larkspur: Belonging to the buttercup family, these flowers bloom in shades of white to violet.

* Pansy: These flowers are some of the earliest spring bloomers, arriving alongside spring bulbs like tulips.

* Petunias: Petunias put on a show of color through the entire season, making them a popular bedding flower.

Perennials

These plants will come back year after year and offer

Home

two families since it was built. Different from most Octagon homes, it is comprised of five room-sized octagons joined together. The varied heights of the octagons on the roof line and the "Peter Pan" casement windows give one the impression of a romantic castle in bucolic setting. However, you are only minutes from major commuting routes, the Middlesex Fells Reservation and a short walk to downtown Winchester which features the commuter rail to Boston.

With a total of eleven fascinating rooms, hardwood floors, nine and a-half foot ceilings, two full baths, five bedrooms and a flying, circular staircase with hand-turned, hardwood banister, this home is unique. The current owners have been wonderful custodians of this historically significant home and have enjoyed the setting on 1.66 acres, replete with gorgeous plantings and the oldest Hemlock in town—thought to be three hundred years old. If you enjoy an historic home, this could be the one for you.
